

Threat in Laos Rising, Laird Feels

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the Communist command's armed threat has diminished in South Vietnam in the past year while increasing in southern Laos.

And in Cambodia, he said, "it remains at approximately the same level," but added: "We are watching this matter very carefully."

Laird also told a news conference prior to his departure from Vietnam that U.S. forces will meet or exceed every one of President Nixon's deadlines for troop withdrawals, citing again Nixon's criteria for pullouts: "progress in Paris, progress in Vietnamization and the size of the enemy threat."

'Orders' Used In Defense Of Sgt. Hutto

Soldier Fired at
My Lai Civilians

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — The lawyer for Sgt. Charles Hutto said today that the soldier shot at everything he saw in My Lai, but is only intent was to follow orders from the officers in charge of the assault.

And unless the government can prove that Hutto entered the village with the specific intent to murder Hutto must be acquitted, said Edward McGill of Miami.

Hutto is charged with assault with intent to murder at least six My Lai civilians during an infantry assault March 16, 1968. The trial judge has ruled that Hutto cannot use obedience to superior officers as a defense.

"Charlie did what Charlie was told and went through the town and when he saw something, he shot it," McGill said as he opened the defense case at Hutto's court-martial.

The lawyer said, in his 30 Turn to Page 2, Col. 2

Astronauts Go Into Isolation

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts today began a 21-day period of preflight medical isolation to minimize exposure to disease or illness such as the measles contact which forced a late substitution in the Apollo 13 crew last year.

Astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell and their backup crew generally will be restricted to three areas of the Kennedy Space Center. These are the crew living quarters, the training building and the launch pad. They also will make one or two trips to nearby Patrick Air Force Base for practice flying in jet airplanes. Movements from one point to another will be watched carefully so the astronauts do not contact unauthorized personnel.

The Apollo 14 launching is scheduled Jan. 31 with Shepard and Mitchell to attempt a landing in the moon's Fra Mauro Highlands to search for ancient Commenting on U.S. troop morale after a four-day visit to Vietnam, Laird told a final news conference that a problem existed in the ranks.

"Our commanders are well aware of the problems involved in a war that is winding down," he said, "But I believe this winding down is a good problem for our commanders to have."

Asked whether U.S. soldiers in Vietnam are displaying reluctance to expose themselves to the dangers of combat in a war that is winding down, Laird said:

"I've had an opportunity to talk to many young men in Vietnam. I've found this attitude expressed by a few but I believe it is a minority position.

"I feel the best way for us to proceed and to go forward in Vietnamization is to see that they are on the alert and are careful, but at the same time ready to pursue and destroy the enemy where necessary."

He said the United States has made a genuine effort to cut its casualties, "and the President and I won't be satisfied until this figure is down to zero."

Laird said his talks and field tours had "reinforced the conviction" that Vietnamization of the war is ahead of schedule.

"As a result," he said, "there will be withdrawals of additional thousands of military personnel this year."

He gave no new withdrawal figures, saying Nixon would announce the next target in April. But he said the current target—a ceiling of 284,000 U.S. troops in the country by May 1—would be met or exceeded. The U.S. Command announced today that the total strength last week dropped to 332,500, the lowest in more than four years.

From Saigon, Laird flew to Honolulu for meetings with Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander in chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific.

Ali Appeal to be Heard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court granted a hearing today to heavyweight fighter Muhammad Ali on his claim that he was entitled to exemption from the draft as a religious conscientious objector.

The court's action, announced in a brief order, clears the way for Ali's fight in March with Joe Frazier for the heavyweight boxing championship.

Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, was convicted 3½ years ago for refusing induction into the Army. He claimed he was entitled to an exemption as a Muslim minister.

His conviction carried a five-year sentence, and boxing officials stripped him of the title he had won from Sonny Liston.

Had the court turned down Ali's appeal it would have been highly unlikely that the fight with Frazier would have been held.

Rich Bout
The bout, scheduled for New York City on March 8, will be the richest in history. Ali made a fight comeback last October scoring a technical knockout over Jerry Quarry and continued with a victory in December over Oscar Bonavena.

In the appeal, Ali's lawyers claimed government wiretapping listened in on his private telephone conversations. The appeal also challenged the validity of orders from what Ali called a "lilywhite" Selective Service System.

But, in granting review, the court limited its consideration to the single point whether the government was wrong in characterizing Ali's objections to Army duty as "political and racial" rather than "religious."

Ali is a Negro.

The hearing will be held at a date to be fixed in a few months. The most likely prospect is in April.

Wiretap Charges
Justice William J. Brennan Jr. in a note following the court's order, said he favored hearing the wiretap allegations as well as the conscientious objector issue.

The same note said Justice Thurgood Marshall did not participate in the case.

Marshall is a former chief counsel for the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund. His self-exclusion presumably was based on the fact the appeal was filed by Fund attorneys. This means Marshall will not take part in deciding whether Ali's conviction should stand.

It took the vote of four justices to grant Ali a hearing. Following customary practice, the court did not reveal who these justices are. All that surfaced was that Brennan favored hearing Ali.

been given a list of the 112 persons and their families to help detect any potential disease carrier.

The wives of the astronauts may have been exposed to anything that might transmit to the crew.

Lee said the isolation won't inhibit the ability of the astronauts to move around.

"For example, if they want to move from their crew quarters to the handball court on the third floor for exercise, the hallway through which they walk will be cleared," he said. "A bell or a horn will sound, and the halls will be emptied."

During such moves, the astronauts will wear oxygen masks that will prevent them from inhaling surrounding air.

To travel the block between the quarters and training building or the 30 miles to Patrick Air Force Base, the spacemen will drive their own cars, which are provided with special parking areas, roped off and manned by security guards.

Business Taxes Being Cut Back

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP)

President Nixon may take a personal hand in an expected announcement today that tax burdens on business will be eased—a move aimed at speeding economic expansion.

The only news briefing of the day at the Western White House, was scheduled for 3:30 p.m. EST, an unusually late hour coinciding with the closing bell on the stock exchanges in New York.

Treasury officials in Washington spent much of Sunday completing drafts of new regulations to grant businesses faster tax writeoffs on amounts they spend on new plant and equipment; and more thereafter.

The upshot would be tax savings in the billions.

The plan is to permit businesses to deduct more for depreciation of equipment in the earlier years of its use.

Depreciation Rules
Under present depreciation regulations, companies deduct from taxes the cost of equipment on a yearly installment basis taking into consideration the useful life of the machinery.

The presidential panel which devised the new rules said they would reduce government receipts by $1.4 billion in the first year, $3.7 billion in the second and more thereafter. The idea is to encourage modernization of equipment and expansion of production. In recent months, industries have spent frugally on new plants and machinery.

Nixon, who has embraced deficit spending as a means of pumping new life into the sagging economy, has virtually completed work here on the new federal budget for the 1972 fiscal year that begins July 1.

In what he terms an expansionist budget, Nixon is expected to call for federal outlays of at least $225 billion during the book-keeping year.

The President worked Sunday morning on his State of the Union message at his seaside villa, La Casa Pacifica. In the afternoon he continued his labors at his more elaborate office at the neighboring Western White House.

Since flying here last Tuesday with wife Pat and daughter Tricia, Nixon has taken few breaks from work that Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reported has averaged 8 to 10 hours daily.

Comparable schedules in Washington, he said, often stretch to 16 to 18 hours.

Nixon has taken a few swims in the heated pool at his home, walked on his private beach, driven once around Orange County and made one helicopter visit to Santa Catalina Island.

Nixon is expected to return to Washington Thursday. He probably will make an appearance there before members of the Republican National Committee after they formally name a successor to National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton, who is being nominated to replace the fired Walter J. Hickel as secretary of the interior.

The national chairmanship is expected to go to Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, a Nixon stalwart. The White House won't comment on that matter, however.

Neither will anyone here confirm or deny rumors that 24-year-old Tricia Nixon is engaged to Edward F. Cox, a Harvard law student.

A prediction by Washington Star columnist Betty Beale that Tricia will become Mrs. Cox at a White House wedding on June 14 was discounted, in effect, by Constance Stuart, staff director to Mrs. Nixon, who said flatly that there is no wedding date or place at this point.

Appeal Turned Down Hoffa Faces Longer Term

WASHINGTON (AP) —

James R. Hoffa, once among the nation's most powerful union leaders, faces up to an additional five years in federal prison following Supreme Court rejection today of an appeal from his 1964 pension fraud conviction.

The 57-year-old Teamsters Union president, serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering, lost his third attempt in the court to avert a new jail term.

The appeal, signed by five lawyers said 12 constitutional questions worthy of a court hearing arise from Hoffa's conviction in Chicago on charges of fraudulently obtaining loans from the Teamsters pension fund.

But the court, on a 7-0 vote and without comment, turned the appeal down. In the two earlier rounds the justices directed federal courts in Chicago to consider Hoffa's claims that illegal government eavesdropping should invalidate the conviction.

The last ruling against the stocky unionist was entered by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago Aug. 5.

Hoffa entered the federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa., March 7, 1967, to begin serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering. The U.S. Parole Board rejected his bid for early release in October 1969. The board said it would reconsider his case in March 1971.

The five-year pension fraud sentence would begin with completion of the jury tampering sentence.

Among the contentions raised in the appeal was that the trial

Hoffa, Burris and five codefendants were convicted of conspiracy and mail and wire fraud in a complex scheme to divert more than $1 million in loans from Teamsters pension funds into a real estate venture.

Hoffa was fined $10,000 in addition to the five-year sentence. Burris was sentenced to 18 months and $5,000 fine. The others and their sentences: Zachary Strate Jr., a New Orleans builder, three years and $5,000 fine; Abe I. Weinblatt, a retired furrier living in Miami Beach, an hour in custody and $5,000 fine; Calvin Kovens, Miami Beach contractor, three years and $5,000 fine; Benjamin Drapkin, now, former Minneapolis businessman, five years; the late Samuel Hyman, Miami Beach realtor, a year and a day and significantly aid the prosecution.

Skylight Opera Theatre's Second Showing

BY JINGO

Jingo has received the word, songs a stand-out, especially when it sang alone or with a few of the regulars. Another viewer found the "midget versus" situation a bit ridiculous. "I, too had trouble with the where the cast has given its run of performances and set its "Your Own Thing," coming basketball player" stature. But, it was a fun evening Saturday stage.

as another spectator said, "I night at the successful Kiwanis benefit and it should be again Friday. Jingo thinks the US Fox Valley performance may even be better because the show will be played in the smaller, 250-seat Fine Arts Theater. It's on the screen and says (by way more in keeping with the Milwaukee Skylight Opera Theatre, where the cast has given its run of performances and set its "Your Own Thing," coming basketball player" stature. The production at UW Fox Valley Campus will be at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theater.

It's a take-off of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" in musical form, updated with rock and roll tempo to make it quite different. Actually, it's not the usual musical because this fast-moving show is very sophisticated, slightly irreverent, and everything's-rosy plot, this one is urbane in a needle-sticking manner with overblown screen flashes of God and the Pope speaking, along with Humphrey Bogart, John Wayne, Queen Elizabeth and even Shakespeare himself.

One theatergoer, who had seen the same show done last summer by La Petite Theatre in New Orleans, was delighted then and equally pleased a second time Saturday by the Milwaukee group. "The show, simply is delightful, high-spirited with vavacious spoofing: New Orleans took the irreverent overtones in stride, laughing its way along, while the Appleton audience could be heard to gasp a little."

This same member of the audience noted that the Milwaukee company showed its acting mettle, with its professionalism showing all the way.

There were moments when the production suffered, primarily for its lack of volume in the overlarge Appleton High-West Auditorium. The action also seemed huddled onstage and would have looked better projected outward, in spite of technical reasons for the way it was done.

Jingo found the leads light-weight for their roles, but excellent when it came to acting. The singing two came through loud and clear in good sa, Raquel Welch, Ronald Fraser.

Buchwald Gives Predictions for '71

BY ART BUCHWALD WASHINGTON — This is the time of year when three of us in the Crystal Ball business must reveal what our vibrations tell us will happen in 1971.

The science of predicting is so exact that last year I was only wrong on one prediction out of 155. The prediction I erred on was that J. Edgar Hoover would retire and take the FBI with him.

I have had some strong

vibrations for 1971 and here they are.

Jackie Kennedy will come into a windfall of money and will no longer have to make her own clothes.

The Marlboro man will give up smoking, and go back to chewing tobacco.

Three hundred and thirty-five thousand Spiro Agnew watches will be recalled because of a faulty mainspring.

"Khrushchev's Memoirs" will be bought for a film, but in order to guarantee a box office, the producers will add 32 orgy scenes at the Kremlin showing Stalin as a dirty old man.

Former President Lyndon Baines Johnson's book will be published and will reveal that the person responsible for all his wrong decisions was Jack Valenti.

Tricia Nixon will be married, but Sen. Edmund Muskie will not be invited to the wedding.

The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts will open in September, and at President Nixon's insistence, Guy Lombardo will conduct the orchestra.

David Eisenhower will become the manager of the Washington Senators.

At the personal request of Princess Margaret, Queen Elizabeth will make Lord Snowdon high commissioner of the island of Tonga in the Pacific Ocean. Although Princess Margaret will not go with him, she hopes it will stop the rumors that they are not getting along together.

David Frost will ask for political asylum in the United States after being turned down for a knighthood in Great Britain.

Ralph Nader will marry Charlotte Ford and take over her father's family business.

Many priests will discover this year that marriage isn't what it's cracked up to be.

Panty raids will be resumed on the Berkeley campus.

With more people buying police dogs, the crime rate in the country will go down, but there will be a marked increase in the cases of rabies.

Sales of the "how to do it" sex books will have peaked early, in 1971 and will be replaced in popularity by books on how to make your own wine.

Mayor John Lindsay will be the door prize at the New York Policemen's Benevolent Ball.

And finally, my vibrations tell me that in 1971 President Richard Nixon will make something perfectly clear.

Old Man Must Raise $125 For Health Aids

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — A 70-year-old man in a convalescent home has until Tuesday to raise $125 or the hearing aid and glasses he has had for three weeks will be repossessed.

Floyd Rice, who has been nearly deaf and blind for several years, did not think he could afford glasses or a hearing aid until recently, when his home was to be sold.

Rice expected to pay $260 for the items from proceeds from the sale of his home. However, the sale could not be completed because the title to the land was not clear.

The hearing aid company then notified Rice he must pay at least $125 down by Tuesday or the aids would be taken back.

This new car is the best reason not to buy a Volkswagen Beetle.

It's a new car when every car maker seems to be giving you a reason or another for not buying a Volkswagen Beetle. It might be a good idea to listen to the best reason.

Volkswagen's Super Beetle. It's a car that will be the luggage space as the Beetle of yesterday.

It's a car that's longer, more powerful, and more comfortable.

It's a new suspension system for a smoother ride.

It's a flow-through ventilation system to bring in fresh air when the windows are closed.

The interior is, to be honest, much nicer.

The floor is fully carpeted.

In all, it has 89 things you could never find on a Beetle.

So of all the claims you'll hear this year by car makers that their cars are "better than a Beetle," there's only one car maker with 25 years experience in small cars to back it up.

Knit it yourself

Ole for Knit and Crochet

BY LOIS HOLMES

The Gaucho made news in knit. The stockinette stitch is basic. The usual curved line on the bottom of the pants is outlined with the rope stitch and accented with 2 small buttons.

Topping off these pants is a multicolored bolero, done in a cluster crochet, easily maneuvered by using double crochet stitch and edged with single crochet. The tie-on fringe adds the finishing touch with 4-ply wool or synthetic yarn. Sizes Small, Medium and Large are all included in each pattern.

To order Knit & Crochet-617 Gaucho Pants and Fringed Bolero, send $1.50 in currency, check or money order to Lois Holmes of California, Post-Crescent, Box 6002, Inglewood, Calif. 90301.

Please print your name, address, zip code and pattern number plainly. Send 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mail and special handling, or 25 cents each for air mail.

Dear Readers: Here's something you might like to make before summer.

MATERIALS: 4-Ply Knitting Worsted, or Synthetic 14-oz. Skein, Main Color; Small amount of contrast color for stripes; No. 3 and No. 8 knitting needles.

GAUGE: 5 sts to 1 inch. With No. 3 needles, cast on 48 sts. Work in K2, P2 ribbing for 1 inch. Join contrast yarn and work 2 rows of ribbing. Fasten off contrast color, pick up Main Color and continue in ribbing for 4 inches more. Next row, 1K2 tog. (P2 tog. repeat from 1 across (24 sts). On the next row, inc 1 st in ea st (48 sts). Change to No. 8 needles and work in stockinette st. begin with a purl row, and work even for 2 1/4 inches, end with a purl row. Next row, K2 tog. across row (24 sts). P 1 row, and K 2 tog across next row (12 sts). Fasten off yarn, leaving a 12-inch length. Run end through all sts and draw up tightly. Fasten off.

Work other three covers in the same fashion, except work one additional stripe for No. 2 club, two additional stripes for No. 3 club and three additional stripes for No. 4 club, working the stripes about 1/2 inch apart.

Here is a helpful reminder sent in by Mrs. J. W. Mann: A simple slip knot in the working strand of your yarn prevents unraveling when you put it down.

I am sure that all of us have a favorite "catchall" bag in which we deposit leftover balls of yarn. Mrs. R. J. Williams offers the following hint: Cellophane tape over the end of an opened ball of yarn prevents the threads from tangling when they are put all together in one bag or box.

Mrs. K. Campbell offers this good idea to achieve even loop lengths when working the loop stitch. She finds that working the loop over a pencil or a piece of cardboard instead of the left index finger keeps the loop stitch much more evenly.

Mrs. J. B. Hanold sent in the following suggestion of what to do with your old nylons after they are no longer presentable to wear: Cut nylons that have been discarded into 1 1/2 inch strips, first cutting away the heels, feet and tops. Add a strand of leftover yarn to each strip and crochet them into sturdy rugs. You can make them any shape and use a basic single crochet stitch with the appropriate size hook to enable you to crochet with ease. The more hose you wear out, the larger your rug will grow. Collect them from your friends and let them add to your fun.

Your Problems

Ultimatum Issued: Abortion or Divorce

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 40. My wife is 38. We have been married 20 years. Our children are 17, 15, and 13. I've been a good provider, a good father and a good husband...in that order. My wife and I have devoted our lives to our children and we were looking forward to the day when there would be just the two of us. We've always wanted to travel and have a little fun.

Last month when our youngest boy turned 13 our goal was in sight. Another two years and he'd be off to prep school and we'd be free. I felt ten years younger just thinking about it!

Just as I was making plans to have a vasectomy, my wife announced that she had seen the doctor and he told her she is pregnant. I asked her to have an abortion. She refused. We got into an argument and now she isn't speaking to me. I think she is happy about this pregnancy. In fact, I have a sneaking suspicion she got this way on purpose. The prospect of being tied down until I am nearly 60 depresses me. The way I see it, either my wife has an abortion or I get a divorce. When I told her to take her choice she didn't believe I was serious — but I am. I realize this is an extreme measure but I can't face raising another child. I'd like your honest opinion. — On the Brink

Dear On: My honest opinion is that you are either off your rocker or an 18 Carat Heel. Maybe both. Your wife did not get pregnant by herself. If she wants to have this baby you have no right to ask her to have an abortion. She is the one who must carry the child, deliver it, and care for it. The least you can do is give her a full measure of emotional support. My advice is to stop acting like a jackass and accept this fourth child with dignity.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several days ago, I ran into a fellow I dated a few times when I was in high school. We are now both 22. I am not married. Bud is. In fact he has two small children.

I was immensely attracted to Bud when we were in school but he didn't seem to go for me. When we met in the super market he was knocked out by my looks, my figure, the whole bit. He said he'd love to see me again, but he made it plain he couldn't take me out publicly. He'd like to come to my place and see me "quietly." It seems he married the "wrong" girl. His wife is unresponsive and cold. He needs someone who can give his life meaning.

I am dating several fellows but no one seriously. (My true love was killed in 1968. Vietnam.) I'm not promiscuous but I do have a yen for this old flame. I guess I really feel sorry for him. He is miserable and he wants me. Would it be wrong? — Vulnerable

Dear Vul: We both know what you can do for him, but what can he do for you? For openers: He can take up a lot of your time. And he's sure to improve your cooking and double your grocery bill because you'll be fixing little suppers, . . . trying out new recipes. While you "give his life meaning" you'll be passing up opportunities to date single fellows. And let's not overlook the possibility that he might dump his wife and marry you. You would then have the privilege of helping him with alimony and support money for the children. And don't forget the guilt (both yours and his). Suddenly, when it's legal, you'll discover that it isn't nearly so exciting as you thought it would be.

Finesse or establish a side suit? It's an often perplexing question to all players, experienced or not. The answer lies not in a general rule, but in the probabilities for success of the two plays.

Mr. Barbershopper of the Year is John VerBockel. So voted the Appleton Valley Aires Barbershop Chorus of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

Amidst applause, the chapter's immediate past president accepted the honor from last year's winner, Leroy London, in ceremonies climaxed the annual awards and installation dinner Saturday evening at the Columbus Club.

The men and their wives also paid tribute to Carl Schumacher, chorus director, with a gift of tools for the handyman.

James Tierney, president; Lee Ischinger, administrative vice president; Robert Thiel, program vice president; Jerry Miller, secretary; Bob Pautz, treasurer, and Arly Kuhn and Will Mackin, board members, were installed by Ken Fulton, area counselor.

Master of ceremonies was Del Bradford, 27-year veteran and charter member of the group.

Gales of Laughter greeted the comedy portion of the Barbershoppers' awards dinner. And no one seemed to enjoy the surprise program planned by John VerBockel more than Howard Palmbach and Robert Thiel.

Birth Control Advocate Sees 'Survival Situation'

BY SANDRA SHACKELFORD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN BAY — Mrs. Jean K. Hutchinson, public relations director for the Planned Parenthood Center of Buffalo, is hopeful that the day will come when parents will develop an apologetic attitude for having large families.

In an interview during the two-day Population Growth Symposium sponsored by the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay Friday and Saturday, Mrs. Hutchinson contended that due to the high birth rate in the United States, we are in a survival situation.

"We must cut our fertility rate because our quality of life is at stake," Not only is the quality of life affected, but "our standard of living, its further deterioration and the kind of world our children will live in is at stake."

She fears that unless families limit the number of offspring voluntarily the government will step in and force their limitation, if the situation becomes more critical.

"I don't think any child should come into the world who is not going to be loved and cared for," stated Mrs. Hutchinson, herself the mother of three.

"If everyone practiced birth control and had children only when they wanted them, we wouldn't have unwanted children."

According to recent studies, between one-third and one-half of the population growth in the U. S. in recent years can be attributed to unwanted children — children unwanted at conception.

She cited the mother's health and family stability as other arguments for the recognition of the controversial birth control issue.

"When couples have children when they can cope with them (financially, sexually and psychologically) you don't find men deserting their families," she maintained.

Relates Incidents

Mrs. Hutchinson, who has been with the Planned Parenthood Center for four years and in the field of social work since 1946, illustrated the need for family limitation, education and direction with the cases of three mothers with whom she worked.

"A 38-year-old single woman on welfare. Five illegitimate children. No one had ever recommended birth control. She knew the children's names, but not their birth dates, and she didn't know their years in school. She didn't want them in the first place."

The second woman was 24. "She had 10 pregnancies. Eight living children. She was too tired to go for her six-week checkup after her last baby. When our Outreach worker came to her door, she burst into tears and said, 'God must have sent you'."

The third woman had a congenital heart ailment. "After her second child, her Catholic doctor told her she should not have anymore children but he didn't tell her how not to. She had two more by the rhythm method. After the two extra ones, she went to a priest, and she and her husband were told to live as brother and sister. This caused serious problems in the home. Their children were taken in for counseling which reflected trouble in the home. Finally a worker in the Catholic Charities sent her to the Planned Parenthood Center."

Clergy Interested

The clergy is not indifferent to the rising voice of the advocates of planned parenthood. There are 130 members of the clergy on the center's advisory committee.

"Our clergymen," she noted, "did much of the abortion counseling before the abortion law went into effect July 1 in New York State."

The absence of the Catholic clergy is noticeable. One priest serves on the National Planned Parenthood Board. Overall, however, "there are varying opinions among the Catholic clergy. Some feel contraception is a matter of conscience and some don't."

Minority Geared?

Is the emphasis on cutting down the number of children per family being forced upon the poor and minority groups?

Negative was the reply.

Mrs. Hutchinson does not think Planned Parenthood advocates "are legislating to minority groups. They are suggesting two children-families for everyone not just for the poor. The over-population problem is with the middle class which is the bulk of population."

"There is strong feeling in the black community concerning birth control," she admitted. Many militants feel that "the white establishment is once again trying to cut down their number. I don't think this is true of an agency like Planned Parenthood. We're totally interracial from the top down."

The public relations director was emphatic in her demands for more education in the area of birth control, more available service, more research and the legalization of abortions.

Eighty-five per cent of the medically dependent women in the U.S. of child bearing age still do not have contraceptive care, she said.

Mrs. Hutchinson added, "We need more research for better methods. We need legalized abortion as a back-up for these methods."

"Hopefully women will resort to birth control first. If the birth control method doesn't work, then abortion."

Better Marketing System Adds More Value to Food

It takes money to perform the functions of marketing but at the same time these functions make products more valuable to the user, says Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Put simply, the marketing system brings the food to you. Starting with the raw material, marketing puts it in a usable form, at a convenient location, when you want it and often at the price you are willing to pay.

When considering the improvements in food you are getting more for your marketing dollar than ever before — more ready to eat foods, more variety and more types and sizes of packages to meet your needs.

Marketing costs are rising because of increased quantities of food that must be handled, the higher cost of wages, transportation and advertising, plus, the convenience marketing is adding to foods.

The marketing picture is consistently changing. The number of wholesalers is declining. As more retail chains and large supermarkets assume the wholesaling functions this number will continue to drop.

The number of grocery stores is declining. This is due to the many small grocery stores going out of business. The big area of growth is in the discount supermarket and the convenience food stores.

Foods introduced over the last ten years, such as instant mixes, diet and ready to eat foods, make up half of the total food sales.

Many of the "new foods" are made possible by emulsifiers, stabilizers and preservatives that give a better texture, flavor and have better keeping qualities.

Processes such as vacuum drying and freeze drying have taken on great commercial importance. Freeze dried is almost synonymous with instant coffee.

Packaging innovations include plastic cooking pouches, light weight steel cans, flexible films and plastic containers.

In the future all the checking out, inventory and ordering for a supermarket may be done by computer. Currently a computerized system is being tested.

Spring Fling Daisies Abloom

Daisies are blooming in January for the Appleton Junior Woman's Club. They are blossoming on labels, posters and program book covers as the "Oops A Daisy" theme for the 1971 Spring Fling.

The Spring Fling, scheduled for May 7 and 8 at Appleton High School-West auditorium, is the club's major fund raising enterprise for charity. Community Activities Center, New Hope Nursery, the Y-Teen Center and Villa Hope will be among the beneficiaries of this year's production.

The yellow daisy lapel pins will identify Appleton Junior Woman's Club members to area businessmen Wednesday as approximately 50 members participate in an advertisement selling campaign organized by Mrs. James Zwack, program book chairman. Members will meet at the home of Mrs. David Weiland at 9 a.m. for a continental breakfast and briefing before calling on prospective advertisers. After a 12:30 p.m. luncheon at the Weiland and Zwack homes, the women will continue selling advertisements during the afternoon.

Directing the day's activities will be team captains, Mrs. C. L. Abbott, Mrs. Ronald Agronin, Mrs. William Boettge, Mrs. John Dutcher, Mrs. Charles E. Torinus, Mrs. Jeffrey Warren, Mrs. Ronald Westgate and Mrs. Larry Vander. Serving at the luncheon will be Mrs. John Hanson, Mrs. Robert Swan and Mrs. Westgate.

The program book, which will be distributed at each performance, will be designed and produced by Mrs. David Beal.

The 1967 Spring Fling raised $9,628.67 for the Family Service Association of the Fox Valley, Inc., which the Appleton Junior Woman's Club had agreed to help establish.

Despite the cold, everything's coming up daisies for the Appleton Junior Woman's Club. Even though it's January, members are making sure the cheery flower blooms everywhere as they begin their advertisement campaign for the Spring Fling, this year entitled "Oops A Daisy." Above, admiring one of the posters for the major fund raising project are Mrs. Ronald Agronin and Mrs. James Zwack. (Post-Crescent Photo)

International Best Dressed List Snubs First Families, Royalty

By ANN HENCKEN

NEW YORK (AP) — President Richard Nixon got two votes—and Chairman Mao Tse-tung of the Republic of China received one vote—in the polling for the International Best-Dressed list of 1970. But this wasn't enough to elect either of them.

In fact, Mme. Georges

Pompidou, wife of the president of the French Republic was the only member of a nation's first family to make this year's list.

No member of a royal family was included. Queen Elizabeth II, Queen Sirikit of Thailand, HRH the Duke of Windsor (with his wife) and Prince Philip Duke of Edinburgh are all members of the Hall of Fame.

However, the list is more international than ever. Sixty-six men and women of 16 nationalities were chosen for their good taste and influence on current fashion. They were elected by written ballot sent to some 2,000 people in the fashion, social and theater world.

Twelve Women Chosen

Voted the 12 best dressed women of 1970 were: H.R.H. The Begum Agha Khan, British wife of the Moslem spiritual leader; Mme. Ahmed Benhima, Moroccan, wife of the Moroccan Ambassador to the United Nations; Diahann Carroll, American singer; Catherine Deneuve, French actress; Sophia Loren, Italian film star; Mrs. Denise Minelli, Yugoslav residing in San Francisco; Mme. Georges Pompidou, Mrs. Richard P. Tell, New York, former Marquessa Carol de Portago; Mrs. Ronald Reagan, wife of the Governor of California; Mrs. Samuel P. Reed, American socialite, daughter of Mrs. Charles Engelhard; Mrs. Charles Revson, wife of the cosmetics magnate, and Mrs. Harilaos Theodoropoulos, American wife of the Greek shipowner.

Five women were given "permanent status" and elected to the Hall of Fame: Mrs. William McCormick Blair Jr., Chicago born wife of the former U.S. ambassador who now heads the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington; Mrs. Alfred Bloomingdale of Los Angeles, wife of the founder of the Diner's Club; Mrs. Wyatt (Gloria Vanderbilt) Cooper of New York; Mrs. Kirk Douglas, Hollywood, born in Paris, and Mrs. Patrick Guinness, Lausanne, Switzerland and Paris.

Men Who Rated

"The list was announced by Eleanor Lambert, a publicist of fashions who originated the poll in 1940. The votes were counted by a committee of editors of fashion publications.

The list of best-dressed men for 1970 includes: J. Frederic Byers III of Pittsburgh and New York; Yul Brynner, actor now living in Switzerland; Hernando Courtwright, Mexican-born hotelier of Los Angeles; John Gallier, American socialite of New York and London; The Hon. Angus Ogilvy, British businessman married to Princess Alexandra of Kent; Armando Orsini, New York restaurant owner; Sig. Giorgio Pavone, Roman public relations executive; Baron Alexis de Rede, Austrian-born Paris financier; Thomas Shevlin, Palm Beach socialite; Bobby Short, nightclub star born in Rockford, Ill.; Lord Snowdon, photographer, husband of Princess Margaret and Sargent Shriver, Washington.

Men to rank above the annual vote on the three year old men's list are: Sig. Gianni Agnelli of Turin, Italy, head of Fiat Motors; Cecil Beaton, British artist and photographer; Bill Blass, Indiana-born fashion designer; Pierre Cardin, Venetian-born French fashion designer; Count Rodolfo Crespi, Brazilian-born Italian in public relations; Hubert de Givenchy, French fashion designer; Bernard Lanvin, French head of the couture house; Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts - born statesman; Col. Serge Obolensky, the Russian prince now in American business; Norman Parkinson, British fashion photographer; I.S.V. Patcevitich, Russian-born New York publisher; Baron Eric de Rothschild, member of the French branch of the European banking family and John Weitz, Viennese-born, British-schooled American designer for men.

Professional Winners

Among those women voted the twelve best-dressed fashion professionals were Marisa Berenson, American model, granddaughter of Italian-born French designer Elsa Schiaparelli; Anne Klein, New York fashion designer; Mrs. Remy Saltzman of New York and Naomi Sims, model, and Pamela Lady Harlech, London, American wife of the former British Ambassador to the U.S. Others included Mrs. David Evans, Mrs. Thomas Kemper, China Machado, Eve Orton, Mrs. Robert Sakowitz, Sonia Rykiel and Pilar Crespi, daughter of Count and Countess Rodolfo Crespi of Rome.

Among the men's fashion professional list for 1970 are: Hardy Amies, British fashion designer; Sig. Antonio Cerutti, Italian menswear designer in Paris; Oscar de La Renta, born in Santo Domingo, now a New York fashion designer, and French fashion designers M. Philippe Venet and M. Andre Oliver.

Others included Baron Nicolas de Gunzburg, Kenneth Jay Lane, Thomas Nutter, Robert Sakowitz, Alexander Shields, Chip Tolbert and Daniel Zarem.

End Seen in Pierce Strike As Union Claims Accord

Production workers who struck Pierce Mfg., Inc., Appleton truck body manufacturer last Feb. 5, have voted to accept a company contract offer and presented it in writing to company officials, it has been learned. Company officials claimed it was their original offer but union officials deny this.

Robert Schlieve, business agent for Teamsters 563, said the approximately 105 strikers voted to end picketing and the strike Dec. 23 but that it is still awaiting National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) action on its charge concerning company activities.

"We presented this document to the company and their attorneys Dec. 30, and they've had sufficient time to read this contract," Schlieve said, noting the union is alleging the company is refusing to sign the agreement.

He blamed the Madison law firm representing the company and said that "it is a calculated plan to knock the union out as the representative of the employees."

Douglas Ogilvie, president, said that company attorneys are studying the contract and "we should know by Thursday or Friday whether a settlement can be made."

He said that there are technicalities which have been changed but that "the economics haven't been altered."

He said the offer was the one the company made before the workers went on strike, and noted the company hasn't deviated from that offer.

The offer was a three-year pact which could expire in July, 1972.

Ogilvie said that "we can't do anything until the attorneys give us the okay." He noted that the technicalities included "questions of condition of settlement."

Negotiators haven't met since Oct. 28.

The company has been at 100 per cent production for several months with supervisory personnel and new employees handling the work load, Ogilvie said.

It was far below full production for some time after the strike but has now hired enough new employees, who, Ogilvie said, have permanent jobs with the firm, so that supervisory and other office personnel could return to their normal jobs.

Reports of vandalism to the plant have been made to police during the strike.

Schlieve said today that he couldn't project at this time whether a settlement would be made. He noted that the dispute the union had with the company would be a factor.

"We allege that we have reached an agreement with the company, and the company is refusing to sign a labor agreement embodying the agreed-upon changes," he said.

He said that no dates have been set for the NLRB hearing on the dispute but that the charges were made last month and are being investigated by NLRB officials. He said that the company could be faced with "extensive litigation" as a result of its alleged activities.

Pierce manufactures many types of truck bodies. It was founded in 1917.

Educators to Grapple With '71 Budget Cuts

Fresh from revamping the school district's administration, the board of education tonight will return to the sticky question of what to do about the approximately $15,000 which still has to be cut from the 1971 operating budget.

The board left in limbo the question of what to do about the additional cut after it carved $480,000 from the budget in mid-December. That cut didn't eliminate programs but cut deeply into capital outlay for instructional equipment and supplies and programs.

The cuts are required to meet the Fiscal Control Board's order that it slice $600,000 from its 1971 budget request, bringing the 1971 operating budget to $10.1 million.

The board's first decision tonight probably will be whether to make the cut immediately or hold off, hoping to find places to effect savings in coming months which would allow it to avoid eliminating programs. Board members are divided on what course to follow — some feel morally responsible to make all cuts immediately, while others feel delaying cuts might avoid a wholesale elimination of programs.

"The big issue, I would think, would be programs and people, or can we whittle as we go along," said Kenneth Sager, board president.

More cuts probably will mean eliminating programs and teachers. There are possibilities instituting intramural fees; alternate programs but cut deeply into capital outlay for instructional equipment and supplies and programs.

The board was ordered to cut an even $600,000 but this results in an additional loss of possibly $50,000 in state aids which are partly geared to local contribution. The board traditionally has added the aid loss to the recommended fiscal board cut but last month questioned whether the total cut should be $600,000 including the aid loss.

City Atty. David Geenen was requested to submit a ruling but Sager said today that the board has received no word on this yet.

If the board decides tonight to cut more immediately, Sager said, the administration will be instructed to find areas to make the cuts. The administration last month came up with $180,000 in cut — which the board approved.

Architect Offers To Aid Study

Planner Has File Of Drawings for Vocational School

A local architect has suggested that Appleton officials study the feasibility of converting the Appleton Vocational School building for city use.

John A. Kurth, in a letter to Mayor George Buckley, offered to help with the study.

The vocational buildings will be vacated when the new Fox Valley Technical Institute is occupied. Several uses for the vocational school have been suggested, including police station, public library and city offices.

"Use of these buildings for a police station and city office space is a very good possibility," Kurth told Buckley.

The architect explained that as a former associate and successor to the R.N. LeVee & Associates Architectural firm, he has at his organization a complete file of drawings on the vocational school facilities.

Using the files, the feasibility study could be done "at a minimal cost," according to Kurth.

The board of public works is currently holding a resolution offered by Ald. Orval Polzin (3rd) suggesting a feasibility study of converting the vocational school to City Hall and public library uses.

Anderson in Race For Executive Post

Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson today became the seventh person to announce his candidacy for the new office of Outagamie County executive.

Anderson, 47, last spring was elected to his second term as Kaukauna's chief executive. He also is in his second year as chairman of the Fox Valley Council of Governments, the area's metropolitan planning agency.

In a prepared statement this morning, Anderson said:

"After much discussion with many local citizens, I have decided to run for county executive. The job will carry many and varied responsibilities, and I wanted to make sure that I could fulfill these necessary requirements, if elected."

Gilbert Anderson

"Born and raised in a rural area and having been an alderman and mayor for nearly 17 years, I believe that I understand the problems, and am capable of coping with the varied problems, of both the urban and rural areas of the county."

"In addition, as COG chairman, I have had the opportunity to see and know most of the problems which directly affect our daily lives."

"There are three paramount attributes a county executive should possess — an understanding and ability to handle county budgets, an ability to make daily decisions which are part of any chief executive's life and an ability to assemble and utilize personnel as an effective staff to accomplish these purposes."

"I believe that a county executive must be able to successfully mold a team of people capable of carrying out his directives. The necessity for a close working relationship with county board members and the ability to work with them on daily problems also is a primary requirement of this office."

"In addition, the executive's role will be that of spokesman for intercounty cooperation and liaison for those problems involving the state and federal governments. Involvement in these will become more and more complex in the years to come and it will be necessary that we are involved in state and federal legislation that directly and or indirectly affect our county."

"It is my pledge if you as voters see fit to select me in the primary election and then elect me I will use every means available to accomplish these ends in a democratic and satisfactory manner."

Others who have announced are Appleton Mayor George Buckley, Dist. Atty. James Long, Patrick Flanagan, Kimberly public works director, County Board Supvs. John Schreiter and Norman Austin, and County Administrator Alvin Woehler.

Kimberly Man Stricken, Dies

KAUKAUNA — A 32-year-old Kimberly man was dead on arrival at Kaukauna Community Hospital about 1:30 p.m. today after suffering an apparent heart attack while working at Badger Northland, Inc. here.

The victim was identified as Harold C. Kraft, 138 S. James St., Kimberly, who reportedly fell from a scaffold at the plant after suffering the seizure.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps was investigating the death along with Kaukauna police. Kraft was taken to the hospital by city ambulance.

Won't Report Student Status

Tarr Terms LU Uncooperative on Draft

Lawrence University was cited by its former president, draft chief Curtis W. Tarr, as being among the nation's colleges and universities that have failed to cooperate with local draft boards in connection with student deferment problems.

While most schools keep the boards informed of the changing draft status of students, some private colleges, including Lawrence and Marquette universities in Wisconsin, have "agreed on a policy of noncooperation," according to Tarr, who in 1969 gave up his job as Lawrence president to become Selective Service director.

Tarr made his statements in July before a special draft subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee. The committee, which met in closed session, today made public a table indicating the degree of cooperation or lack of it by colleges.

The spokesman said the policy applies not only to military or draft agencies, but to individuals and organizations in general.

The university will, the spokesman explained, "confirm whether a person is a student" upon request from the Selective Service board, but will release no further information without permission of the student.

It is the student's responsibility, not the school's, to keep the draft board informed of his whereabouts and academic standing, the spokesman contended.

Col. Clinton Knutson, state Selective Service director, agreed that by law "it is the registrant's responsibility to keep the local board informed of his status."

Lawrence University's policy regarding information released to draft boards is becoming somewhat reflective of the policies being instituted by faced.

Many of Wisconsin's private and public colleges and universities, Knutson indicated.

Schools "Pressured"

The schools readily supplied the information "as a matter of practice" until about three years ago, Knutson said. The change came, he said, with the "growing pressures the schools generally could accommodate the system somewhat and still live within the pressures..." by giving the information to the registrant and charging him with the responsibility of notifying his Selective Service board, Knutson explained.

No place in the law, he said, is there a "precise admonition, statement or responsibility for the school per se" to supply the draft boards with information.

The University of Wisconsin, according to the congressional report released today, "will not respond to an inquiry from a local draft board" and the state university system "has restricted some of its communications with Selective Service."

The report included these comments on some other schools:

Rhode Island-Brown University, Johnson & Wales Junior College, Roger Williams Junior College, Rhode Island College and Rhode Island School of Design "do not report interruptions."

Police investigated immediately and found what appeared to be a stick of dynamite with several wires coming out of it. The police and fire department immediately evacuated about 30 residents of the Hotel Howard located on South 8th street, across the alley from Kelvinator. They also closed down Dick and Ann's Cafe and the Pup Tavern, also on 8th street.

Road blocks were set up at both Quay and Franklin streets and the entire square block area was evacuated and sealed off.

Manitowoc Bomb Defused

MANITOWOC — An Army demolition team from Ft. Snelling, Minn., near Minneapolis, dismantled a homemade bomb this morning in downtown Manitowoc.

The team was called in Sunday night after the device was discovered in an alley doorway on the west side of the Kelvinator Commercial Products plant between Quay and Franklin streets.

According to Manitowoc Police Chief Elmer Scherer his department received a call shortly after 9 p.m. Sunday, the night from someone monitoring a citizens band radio broadcast. The caller said he heard someone bragging over the air that he had placed a bomb on the device and told authorities he would not attempt to disarm it.

The demolition team was called at 9:30 p.m., but because of heavy snow in the western part of the state did not arrive until 6:30 a.m. today. The two experts worked for about 20 minutes before giving the "all clear."

Chief Scherer said the device was a single stick of dynamite with a blasting cap on one end, wrapped in electrician's tape. There was no electrical charge connected to it, and nothing to trigger an explosion.

The chief said that while his department continues its investigation, the dynamite will be sent to the state crime laboratory in Madison.

Pollution Charges Hearings to Resume On Kaukauna Landfill

The City of Kaukauna (municipalities) is looking for a site have an opportunity to defend and we have one."

He estimated that testimony disposal sanitary landfill site might continue for two more Tuesday when State Department of Natural Resources Priscilla MacDougal, public in- (DNR) hearings resume at Green Bay.

The DNR hearings were opened in November on a petition claiming the 70-acre proposed site on the city's southeast side would pose a pollution hazard for the Fox River. The hearings were adjourned after three days of testimony from the petitioners and their supporters.

Mayor Gilbert Anderson said today that the city would argue that the site isn't a contamination threat and will be operated properly as a landfill, which includes compacting and covering garbage and rubbish daily.

In November, the city and Lehrer reached a six-month, temporary agreement whereby adequate and safe," he said, he agreed to dispose of the adding that "to me it's ironic that everybody else (other mu-

Twin Cities Firms Pledge Aid to Study Sewage Treatment

NEENAH-MENASHA — Nine needed modifications to the major industrial users of the sewage treatment plant." As "Twin Cities" sewage treatment plant are willing to spend $55.000 to investigate the potential. But it is sure to add a new of a "new and innovative process solution" to the sewage treatment plant. Plant improvements are now estimated to cost about $17.2 million. Local elected officials are anxious to find ways of cutting that, if possible.

That news was announced this morning in a press release from James E. Asmuth, president of Wisconsin Tissue Mills and spokesman for the industrial group.

Asmuth said the proposal will be brought out in detail at the meeting scheduled Wednesday of the Neenah and Menasha, common councils and the Neenah-Menasha Sewerage Commission. He said present figures indicate the plant may be able to get by with lower capacity.

Asmuth said the industrial groups a chance to discuss a proposed sewer user fee ordinance both lower the cost and shorten the total design time for the effort to improve local sewerage plant operation.

"This proposal, by the Roy R. Weston Company (Westchester, Penn.), looks so promising that a local industry group is willing to underwrite the cost of $55,000 to further investigate the idea," Asmuth said.

"It is expected that this study could be carried on concurrently with the Consoer and Townsend design studies for the plant improvements and would not involve any delays in their completion. In fact, there is good reason to believe that the total design time required may be shortened."

The nine-member industrial group also recommends formation of a technical advisory task force "to investigate and evaluate changes which might be made immediately to alleviate the present bypassing of untreated sewage," Asmuth said.

He said members of such a task force could include the "most qualified and competent scientific and engineering talent available to use in the Fox Valley area."

"In the course of studying the waste treatment problems in Neenah-Menasha, a new and innovative process solution has come to our attention which has the potential of significantly decreasing the total cost of

Neenah Units to Survey Housing Need

NEENAH — Movements are underway to mobilize community organizations to conduct a survey of elderly and low income persons who would be eligible to live in a public housing development.

An initial meeting is set for 3 p.m. Wednesday at the First National Bank of Neenah community room to lay the groundwork for a door-to-door campaign to be carried out for the Neenah Housing Authority.

According to Leo Pfister, housing authority chairman, the group also recommends formation of a technical advisory task force "to investigate and evaluate changes which might be made immediately to alleviate the present bypassing of untreated sewage," Asmuth said.

He said members of such a task force could include the "most qualified and competent scientific and engineering talent available to use in the Fox Valley area."

The Chamber agreed to be the clearing house for the survey," Pfister explained. The organization of the survey will be handled by Nika, a

A. John Wiley, chamber executive secretary, pointed out offering the chamber's administrative services is one of the ways he plans to augment the organization's community leadership which he listed as a goal when he took over six weeks ago.

"We have contacted all groups which might be involved with the elderly or low income people and asked them to come to the meeting," Wiley said.

Door-to-Door

"We still need manpower for the door-to-door campaign and we'll probably be contacting other organizations to enlist members for help in conducting the survey," Wiley Wednesday meeting, according to Pfister. "But I would imagine When the survey will get that Wednesday would be the started will be decided at the kickoff," he added.

State Mediator to Aid Menasha Police Talks

MENASHA — A state mediator will meet with city and police patrolmen Tuesday night-step.

The city has not settled with any of its employee groups, even though it started meeting with them in late August. A session Relations Commission (WERC) is scheduled tonight between the mediator was called by Local 34, Menasha Professional Policemens Association (MPPA) after only three negotiating sessions had been held with the city.

Local 34 President Bernard Konetzke said Local 34 petitioned for a state mediator after mediator was being asked in to see if the groups were at an impasse.

In Konetzke's opinion, there days.

Candidates Emerge In NM Elections

NEENAH-MENASHA — With the deadline for filing still more than two weeks off, races for city council posts in both cities are starting to take shape with some familiar names showing up.

Menasha's Sixth Ward, which a year ago saw a half dozen candidates square off at the polls, already has four potential candidates circulating papers.

In Neenah, the only race underway is in the Fifth Ward where incumbent Ald. Thomas Willarson, and Gilbert Krueger, 418 Park Drive, a former alderman, are both circulating being a candidate for re-election.

The four potential candidates, in the Sixth Ward in Menasha include incumbent Ald. Robert Winarski, former alderman Ronald Scheurle, Norman Underwood, 1004 Meadowview Drive, and Raymond LaPorte, 701 Grove St.

The only official candidate in Neenah is Ald. Milton Boehm who filed his nomination papers today for the Ninth Ward post.

The city council elected him last April to fill a vacancy created when Joseph Kraus resigned to seek the city director of administration's office.

Erickson to Retire

With Menasha Third Ward Ald. William Erickson resigning, two persons have taken out papers to seek the vacant post. They are Richard Taves, 512 Nicolet Boulevard and William Zeininger Sr., 337 Ahnaip St.

Charles Heinz, 337 First St., has taken out papers for Menasha First Ward Alderman.

First Ward Ald. Andrew "Bud" DeLeeuw, indicated he will not be a candidate for re-election. The only other incumbent who has not taken out nomination papers is Ald. Herbert Batley, Fifth Ward.

Ald. Richard Heindl, Fourth Ward, has already filed his nomination papers while Second Ward Ald. Walter Remmel is circulating the papers.

Incumbent Robert A. Farrell, remains the only person who has taken out papers for the three Menasha school board posts which come up for election this year.

Difficult to Set Controls On Family Size

are seen as an economic investment against old age, whereas industrialized societies with other programs notice the expense of raising them as a liability.

Some theories hold that birth rates are just "puppets on the strings" of social and economic changes and suggest it's not even worth trying to find out about size desires or to change them. Fohlman said.

One thing is sure, "understanding something is not the same as controlling it," he stressed. Knowing who has higher birth rates may be interesting, but it isn't usually possible to change people's religions or incomes to make them want fewer births.

Pohlman distinguished between "harsh and soft approaches" to changing family size desires. Compulsion in the use of contraceptives is impossible "short of stationing police in bedrooms," he quipped. Only sterilization could be a vehicle.

He said in his view "society has a complete right to force limits on family size if large families are sufficiently dangerous to the group wellbeing. This is no more of an imposition than rules against bigamy, incest, theft, speeding and pollution. . . . But many societies have built up peculiar ideas about the sacredness of freedom to choose family size, "which makes compulsion politically impossible."

Soft approaches include education, information and propaganda campaigns. Concepts of the role of woman are important here. But encouragement of roles outside the home might backfire, Pohlman suggested.

"If fathers or childcare centers take more childrearing responsibility," he speculated, "this may merely free women from some of the confinement, drudgery and irritation that have probably inhibited their wanting more children."

Police and Fire Beat

Four counts of burglary against Donald Gerhartz, 18, route 4, Appleton, were continued to Tuesday in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Friday so he can consult with his court appointed attorney. Authorities charge that he broke into the Kimberly High School twice, on June 17 and July 14, and that he burglarized Johnston Elementary School in Appleton during July. On May 31, detectives charge, he broke into the Owen's Service Station, 2040 E. Newberry St. Two juveniles, from Kimberly and Appleton, have had their cases referred to authorities. Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer set bond at $1,500.

Detectives are investigating a burglary at Kay's Restaurant, 243 W. Wisconsin Ave., where $363 in cash and change was taken late Friday night or early today. There was no sign of forced entry. A cash register had been carried from a front counter to the kitchen.

Cardinal to Speak To K of C Council

GREEN BAY — John Cardinal Cody, archbishop of Chicago, will be the guest speaker at the annual convention of the Wisconsin State Council, Knights of Columbus, May 16-18, here.

Cody will speak at the main banquet May 17 in the Brown County Arena.

Consecrated a bishop in 1947, he first served the dioceses of St. Joseph (Mo.) and New Orleans, before his Chicago appointment.

Students to Speak

Three Machines Hit Snowmobilers Shot at By 'Gentleman Farmer'

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—A rural Green Bay man who described himself as a gentleman farmer fired 17 shots early Saturday at a group of snowmobilers he said were trespassing on his property, Brown County police said.

Officers said at least three machines were hit but no one was injured.

After the shooting, Joseph C. Schmitz, about 55, of Route 3, Green Bay, called county police and told them about the shooting. Deputies went to his home, confiscated his .22 caliber rifle and asked assurance that he wouldn't get another rifle. They said Schmitz refused.

Dist. Atty. Donald Kuldmdler said Schmitz would be charged with reckless use of a firearm. Schmitz and attorney agreed to meet with the prosecutor in his office this morning.

Schmitz told Green Bay Press Gazette reporter Dave Otto that about 30 snowmobiles cut through his 15-acre property in the town of Bellevue, southeast of Green Bay, about 8:30 p.m., Friday. His wife was home alone at the time. She became alarmed and called county police.

When Schmitz returned home about 12:45 a.m., he said, 18 of the snowmobiles cut back across his property, retracing their earlier route. Schmitz said he fired the rifle several times at the moving machines, then got into his car and headed them off at a corner of his property when they cut through an opening in the fence. He said he confronted several of the snowmobilers and opened fire again. They left.

Schmitz said he'd had "considerable trouble" with snowmobilers this winter, a fence had been torn down, and he had posted no-trespassing signs on his property several times but the signs were torn down.

Larry Pravechek, 31, of Route 1, Luxemburg, told newsmen he was one of the snowmobilers fired on. He said he saw a man get out of a car with a gun. Pravechek said he told him, "I'm sorry for crossing your property, and I promise I will never cross it again." The man then fired two shots at his machine. Pravechek added.

toward reaching the goal, according to Vlasin.

Administrators of various programs, he said, have complained it is "frustrating, when pursuing one of a whole catalog of programs, and not knowing how these programs tie together."

Setting the targets would be difficult. They would have to be reasonable, in a range the state and region could afford.

Opinions Sought
Vlasin's committee sought out opinions of private citizens and public officials throughout the 17 counties in compiling the list of problems.

"One thing became painfully clear," the report reads. "There are more problems and needs than there are financial resources in any or all governmental units to resolve them."

On the positive side, the grassroots "think tank" found numerous assets in the region, in its labor force, resources, recreation opportunities, public and private educational institutions.

But they are spread unevenly across the region, as are the problems. Both exist in pockets.

One community's problems may be the reverse of another's. Many problems directly reflect too-rapid growth in urban areas, coinciding with stagnation or decline in rural communities. Urban problems often feed — or are fed by — rural ones.

Vlasin's group didn't attempt to measure any of the problems or propose specific solutions. There wasn't time or sufficient manpower on the committee, and that wasn't the purpose. None of the problems are newly - discovered. In most cases, there are government and private programs already working on them.

What the regional and statewide reports propose is an attempt at putting order and coordination in what is often a fragmented, uncoordinated collection of programs and policies.

Vlasin views the target concept as a way of assuring that the rest of the report is put into action, avoiding the fate of many similar studies by being read, praised and then assigned to some dusty shelf.

Kaukauna Notes Marriage Drop, Birth Increase

KAUKAUNA — Statistics for the city for 1970 reveal a slight decrease in the number of marriages, but an increase in births, according to figures compiled by Deputy Health Officer James Geriz.

There were 99 marriages in the city last year compared with 104 in 1969 and births increased from 329 to 348. Illegitimate births also showed an increase from 10 in 1969 to 16 last year.

There were 100 deaths in the city in 1970 compared with 101 the previous year and 26 residents died outside the city both years. Three fatal deaths were reported in both 1969 and 1970.

Lost Dog's Picture in Paper Gets Him Back to Family

MARION — It was a happy reunion for the Eugene Cherny, family of route 2, Marion, and the friendly canine whose story and picture appeared in Thursday's Post-Crescent.

The Ted Mellin's of 1818 N. E. Third St., had given him a temporary home when the dog apparently had become either lost or dropped off in the city.

There were some tears of joy at the reunion that same night as the four Cherny children, Andy Paul, 5, Penny 9, Tom 15, and Jim 18, happily greeted their pet.

The dog, which the Chernys had called Muttley, (after a "well-known" TV "star.") came to their home last winter and at first they were afraid to go near it as it would only be seen peeking from the barn after dark. However, it didn't take long before he was coming up to the house and he quickly became the children's pet.

Last summer when Mrs. Cherny was mowing hay, the dog jumped onto the moving mower blade which cut his paw nearly off. He was rushed to a veterinarian in Clintonville, who amputated the paw.

The Mellin's had many calls offering a home for the dog after his picture was published and many people brought food to the house for him.

Mrs. Cherny said that they hadn't known what to call the dog either but he seemed to answer to any name ending with an "E" sound.

He had turned up missing about two weeks ago, just before a big snow storm, and the Chernys were afraid he had been killed. They had just about given up that he would ever be found. They have no idea how he got into town.

Power Black-Out Cuts Outagamie Sheriff's Radio

Crews of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company were out late Saturday night attempting to locate the source of a power outage which struck the center of Outagamie County temporarily cutting off communications in the sheriff's department radio room.

A spokesman for the firm said electric power in the Center Valley area went out at 7:47 p.m. It was only partially restored at 10:30 p.m. For about two hours Saturday night, the county sheriff's department had to operate on the City of Appleton police frequency.

An official from the sheriff's department said power was out in an area bounded by the Center Valley and Hamble Roads, and County Trunk A and S.

Evelyn Myers Cracks Two More National Honor Sets

Evelyn Myers continued to set a torrid pace in area bowling as she crashed two more national honor counts over the weekend.

one of them a lifetime high 677.

The New London woman thus brought her honor count total to five in a 9-day span.

Her latest effort was a 633 series rolled in the Friendly Ladies Tournament at Strachota's Milshore Bowl in Milwaukee Sunday night. Her games were 192, 190 and 256. In the 256 line, she finished up with seven strikes in succession.

Mrs. Myers nearly had another national trio but settled for 592 in double competition.

Flyers Edge Montreal

Red Wings Better, Toronto Still Wins; Boston Rips Seals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS after GM Sid Abel quit and in the nine days between Harkness was moved up to re-meetings with Toronto, things place him. After the Wings beat obviously improved for the De-Buffalo Saturday, the interim trophy Red Wings. But they'll part of Barkley's title was lift-have to get a lot better to satisfy the National Hockey League club's new executive alignment.

The Wings tried to reward their new boss with another victory Sunday and outplayed Toronto, outshooting the Leafs 34-19. But the Leafs' defense and bench and ex-coach Ned Harkness in the general manager's office, dropped a 3-2 decision to Toronto Sunday night, a vast improvement over the last time the two teams met when Toronto pummeled Detroit 13-0.

Barkley, named permanent coach of the team just hours before Sunday's game, watched the Wings outplay the Leafs for much of Sunday's game only to lose on a late goal by rookie Bill MacMillan.

In other NHL action Sunday, Philadelphia came from behind to top Montreal 3-2, Boston blitzed California 7-1, Buffalo tied Los Angeles 2-2, Minnesota nipped Chicago 3-2 and New York knocked off St. Louis 4-2.

Brady Broncos Win High School Cage Tourney

The Brady Broncos, captained by Dan Coenen, defeated Deac's Freaks (led by Dennis Hanagan) in the finals of the High School Boys holiday basketball tournament sponsored by the Appleton Recreation Department.

In the Eighth Grade tourney, the Pirates (Steve Stroess) whipped the Chargers (Bryan Mateson), 60-13.

The Lakers (Geoff Petermann) won the Seventh Grade title with a 62-16 victory over the Titans (Randy Thensen).

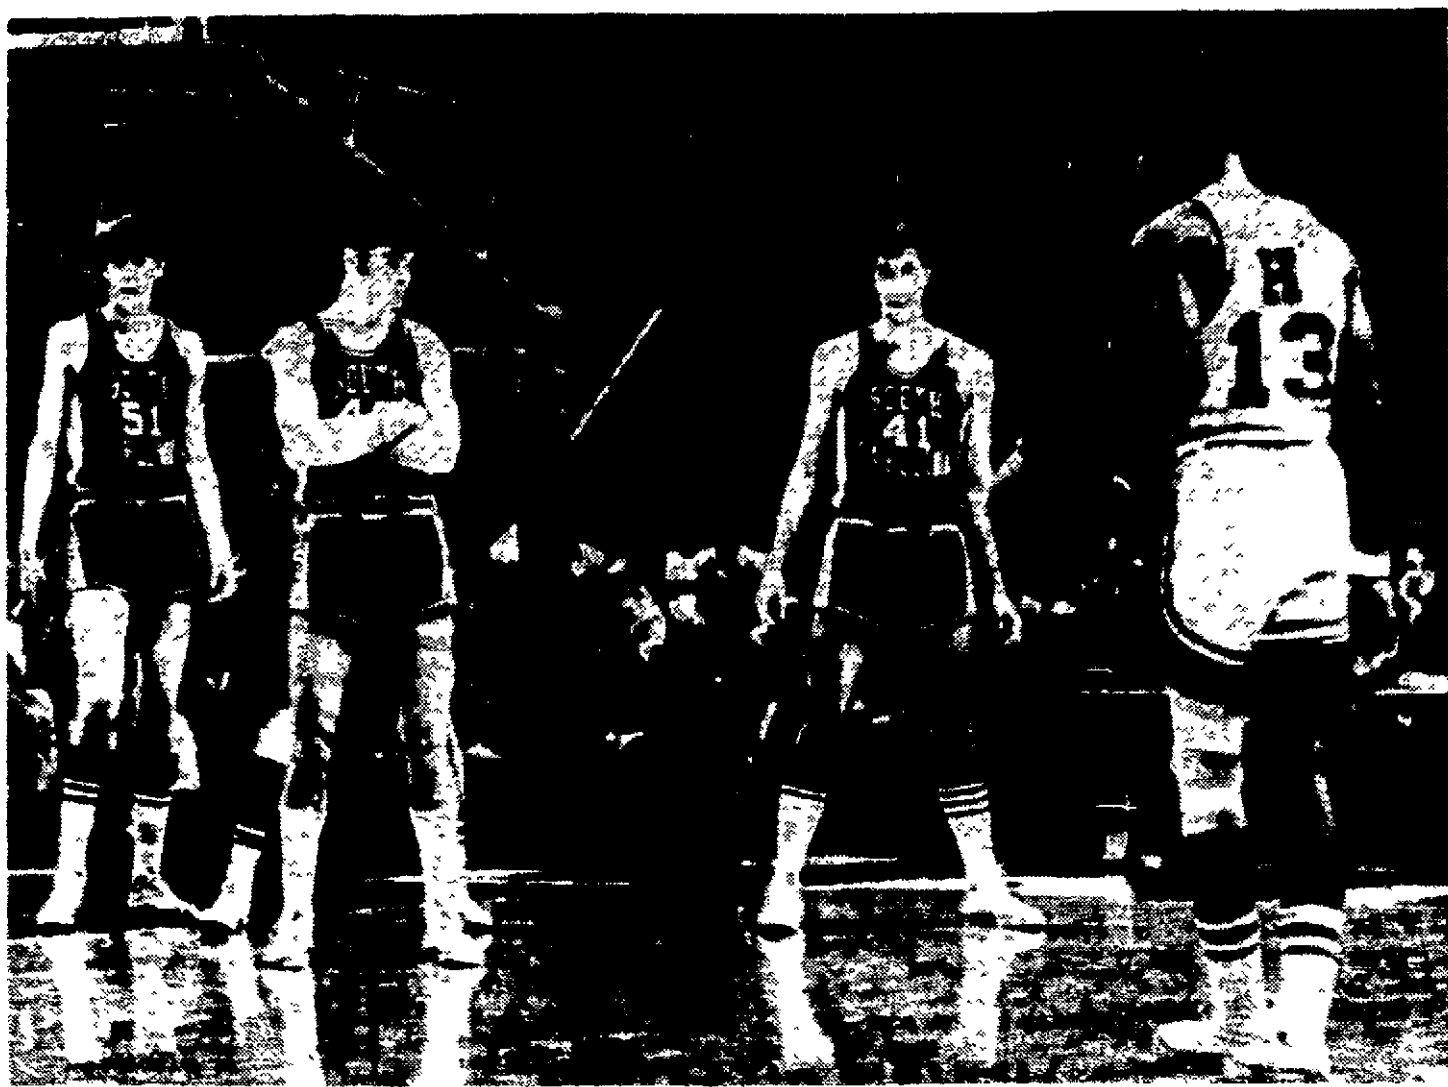

The Sixth Grade boys cage title went to the Globe Trotters (Dave Witthuhn), who scored a 33-27 win over the Jaguars (Tom Beyer).

The Road Runners (Steve O'Hearn) defeated the Bucks (Jan Helmraih), 27-10, for the Fifth Grade cage crown.

In boys dodgeball play, the Straps (Kelly Burton) and the Slingshots (Ron Corks) won the sixth and fifth grade titles, respectively.

Baseball Unit Meets

The Appleton Youth Baseball Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Goodland Field clubhouse.

Standing and Watching was the mode of Saturday's rematch between South Carolina and Maryland. Maryland's Howard White (13) dribbles the ball in first half action as South Carolina players Tom Riker (51), Kevin

Joyce, center, and John Ribock watch. Maryland stalled for a 4-3 lead at halftime and went on to a 31-30 overtime win. (AP Wirephoto)

North Wins 'American Bowl,' 39-2

Big 10 Grid Stars Take Spotlight

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — It was Big Ten day in the American Bowl, far from the Midwest's snowy terrain.

—Ohio State's Leo Hayden ran for two touchdowns, gained 75 yards rushing and was named most valuable player.

—Michigan's Paul Staroba caught six passes, two for touchdowns, to gain 66 yards.

—Michigan quarterback Don Moorehead hit eight of 12 passes for 69 yards and one score.

All that Big Ten Conference muscle Sunday led the North to a 39-2 triumph over the outclassed South in the college all-star production.

Although the live crowd was only 12,000 in fog-shrouded Tampa Stadium, the sponsoring Lions International proclaimed the venture a financial success and said it will be back in 1972.

ARD Hockey League Will Launch Play

The Major Hockey League, sponsored by the Appleton Recreation Department, opens play tonight at Jones Park.

Mark & Ruth's meets the Appleton team in the opener Tuesday night, Appleton faces Lawrence University.

Reason for the success was a ute span midway through the first half it became a lopsided affair.

Morehead broke up a boring first quarter by driving the North 51 yards for a score. Hayden banged across from the three and it was 7-0 with 23 seconds left in the period.

Clifton Hardy, another Michigan ace, started the South mis- fortunes by intercepting a pass Bob Devaney, head man of na- by Arizona State's Joe Spagno- tional champion Nebraska, with- la. He returned it 22 yards to as- sistance from Northwestern's the Rebel three and Hayden, crashed over on the next play for a 14-0 lead.

South running back Sam Sear- ber of New Mexico coughed up to Miami last month, led the ball on the Rebs' next try, South after an illness knocked with Rhodes Scholar Willie Bo- out Auburn Coach Ralph gan of Dartmouth recovering at "Shug" Jordan.

East was in command through most of both games, Jim Vandenberg paced Friday's, win with 21 points, Dan Heinritz, netted 14 and Curt Anderson 12.

Heinritz paced the scoring Saturday with 18 and Vandenberg added 15 against the Evergreens. Schofield trailed by large margins most of the way, but pulled back with a late surge — scoring the final points on an uncontested last second shot.

Goose-Tagging System Dropped

MADISON (AP) — Government conservationists are abandoning their tag system for Wisconsin goose hunters after a three-year trial, but expressed hope Friday that state game wardens will take over the operation.

Bills which would have allowed the state to take charge of the permit program were defeated in the legislature in 1957 and 1959. The government had originated the tag method in 1957 amid complaints from hunters and owners of goose-populated land.

John Langenbach of Minneapolis, assistant regional director of the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, told state officials that budget reductions are forcing the bureau to discard its system.

Hubert Bohnke of Shawano, originally a foe of the tags, said he doubts the legislature would enact a tagging system, but declared a suitable alternative must be adopted.

To Join Lottery Bohnke is chairman of the Natural Resources Board's wildlife and recreation committee.

Jack Anton of Plymouth, president of the Wisconsin Goose Alliance and a landowner in the Horicon Marsh area, said the tag system has been discriminatory because it forces property owners to join a permit lottery to hunt on their own land.

With tagging canceled this year, spokesmen said, the state may have to adopt a temporary system under which land owners in the Horicon area would be responsible for registration of geese killed on their land.

Further recommendations are expected at a February meeting. Langenbach said the government estimates it spent $31,865 on Wisconsin tagging last season, although the state handled and mailed the tags.

He said that with 54 per cent of permit holders having reported, the 1970 goose kill is 67 per cent of the state's quota of 35,000.

Taggart's Condition Remains Serious KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jack Taggart, Kansas City Blues defenseman, remained in serious condition in Research Hospital Saturday night as a result of an automobile accident Friday night.

Hospital authorities said Taggart, 20, former University of Denver star from Penticton, British Columbia, suffered head injuries and a jaw fracture. He remained in the intensive care unit.

Dole Fights Back If Nixon is Target

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a glimpse from the gallery finds him reposed at his backrow Senate desk, the figure of the man most likely to be the next chairman of the Grand Old Party seems almost waxen.

Erect and perfect posture, and word counts with all corners Wrinkleless suit, dark blue. Face frozen in scrutible contemplation. Motionless, save the gentle rhythmic massaging of his lame right hand by two fingers of the left.

Which means he's relaxed in about the same manner as the family Siamese curled innocently beneath the fishbowl, belying around here in a long time.

Or, more precisely, counterattack. Because Robert Joseph side by the hair and drag them Dole's mainspring gets wound down the hill.

When that happens in the Senate, often as not it is the junior senator from Kansas who responds with an oratorical thrust: aimed straight at the offender's ideological gut.

Typically the deep-voiced refrain begins with something like western Kansas the only nation. "I cannot leave unchallenged wide notoriety for his name because the charges that the President longed to cans of pineapple. and his administration . . . and But about 10 months after a record of accomplishment. . . . Seldom, if ever, is he unprepared to fill in the middle, whatever the issue.

By all appearances, the dash-ing Dole is as eager to cross swords in defense of Richard Carwell to the Supreme Court. Nixon as Cyrano de Bergerac! An administration staffer who was in defense of his nose, if not as successfully.

Mixed Results
He's the first to admit mixed results, observing that Arkansas, Democrat J. W. Fulbright "all ways has been very decent to me while he was taking me apart."

Dole insists the dueling House has not been his stage "hasn't been a conscious thing, but ad- is I got tired of hearing people like Kennedy and Muskie and McGovern getting up and browbeating the President.

"There are so many Democratic presidential aspirants, maybe 15 times as part of a that somebody's got to watch group. My one personal meeting was after the elections, when.

And then, this disclaimer based upon my appearances in 27 states, I advised him on the editorial "we" in speaking national chairmanship. But that other debate over war policy of himself: "We really haven't been trying to carve any niche in the Senate by being Nixon's boy."

Talked About
Conscious or not, the phenomenon of this brown-eyed, black-haired conservative rookie senator, age 47, matching wit and word counts with all corners is one of the most talked about on Capitol Hill. And, like most acts of daring either deemed or destined as legendary, his bodychecking oratory already has a nickname suitable for perpetuity: The Dole Patrol.

"He's the first man we've had here in a long time," says Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., "who will grab the other side by the hair and drag them down the hill."

"Some where in the Nixon campaign organization for 1972 there will be a swashbuckler, a real gut fighter," said a fellow senator from the Midlands.

Retool Agnew
"Bob would be perfect if they really meant to retool Agnew."

During Dole's four terms as a congressman for a mammoth, 52-county wheatlands district in central Kansas the only national name he has heard is the name of the President longed to cans of pineapple.

But about 10 months after a record of accomplishment. . . . Seldom, if ever, is he unprepared to fill in the middle, whatever the issue. Nixon's nominations of Clement Haynsworth and G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court. An administration staffer who was in defense of his nose, if not as successfully.

If Nixon now tabs Dole for national chairman—and all indications are that he will—there will be no doubt that the President agreed. But Dole says the White House has not been his stage.

Talked to President
"Oh, I've talked with the President on the phone four or five times," says Dole, "and Nixon is right."

It was the same approach that carried him to his greatest Senate coup, and Fulbright was the victim. The Arkansas Democrat had planned, after the Cooper-Church marathon, to start another debate over war policy pegged to repeal of the 1964 Tonkin Gulf resolution, which President Johnson cited as congressional support of expanded U.S. involvement.

But Dole stole Fulbright's thunder with some lightning of his own. He called up the re-pealer himself, as an amendment to the military sales bill.

Dole reasoned the resolution was of no importance to the White House anyway. "The war was already there when Nixon was elected."

Enraged Fulbright
When an enraged Fulbright objected to Dole's unorthodox parliamentary maneuver, the Kansan shot back: "Is it a rule of the Senate that one must clear everything with the senator from Arkansas?"

Dole's self-proclaimed rise to prominence in the Senate is a departure from the tradition that a freshman must bide his time and work within the system. It's also a change for Dole, who seldom surfaced during eight years in the House.

"The Senate is more of a freewheeling operation," Dole explains. "The senior member often is tied up in committee, which gives the junior members like myself the chance to get out on the floor and get in the scrimmage."

In 21 years of political life—he hasn't lost an election since going to the Kansas Legislature, while still in law school at age 26—he has been a party loyalist, seldom uttering a discouraging word about any man who calls himself a Republican.

Replace Scott
Goldwater and a few other Senate conservatives have been pushing him as a replacement for Scott as minority leader, but Dole dismisses the talk. He has said on occasion he'd like to see more youth at the helm, but he's quick to remind you that "At the same time, I said that Hugh Scott's done a good job. I won't quarrel with Hugh Scott or Bob Griffin."

Even now, knowing that Scott opposed his appointment as national chairman, and he's the Senate leader, who speaks for the President in the Senate? "I want to clear that up with him."

Any chance he'll be on Nixon's ticket, replacing Spiro T. Agnew in 1972? "I don't think so." How about 1976? "I don't know. At this stage, I'm not known much outside Kansas."

In Kansas, he's plenty known. Home 38 times in 1969, and 42 in 1970. And that, after winning more votes in a Senate race than anyone in Kansas history.

"Well," he says, "We've got some problems. A Democratic governor and we lost a House seat. And I've never learned how to say no."

Russell Kansas
Dole grew up at Russell, Kan., a small town near the middle of his old congressional district where his father operated a cream and egg station.

Partly Paralyzed
World War II interrupted his pre-medical studies at the University of Kansas, and while serving in 1944 with the 10th Mountain Division in Italy, shell fragments tore through his body, leaving him paralyzed for months. He still has a partially immobile right arm, which accounts for his left-handed handshake.

During more than three years in hospitals, he met a pretty brunette occupational therapist, Phyllis Hohen. She is now Phyllis Dole.

Off the Senate floor, Dole has a relaxed, engaging presence. He likes to talk. Call an aide at his office, and the senator may pick up the phone instead.

His office is his life. He has few close friends in Washington, and most of them are fellow members of committees, friends built over work. Men like Howard Baker of Tennessee and Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania.

Usual Emotions
His wife, Phyllis, he admits, was torn between the usual emotions when he emerged the frontrunner for the national chairmanship.

"She wanted to see me get the appointment, but she knows I'll be taken away for even more speaking engagements."

As for his daughter, Robin, 16, "She just wants me to get a job where I get a car, so she can drive mine."

Dole insists, however, that his conservative philosophy and dedication to Nixon will not interfere with GOP candidates of a more liberal tilt. "I just happen to believe that when you're a minority party you don't kick anybody out."

He believes Nixon's opponent in 1972 will be Edmund S. Muskie of Maine. And he says the

Fewer Accidents Cost More

KIMBERLY — A marked decrease in the number of accidents was noted in 1970, 59 fewer than in 1969, but property damage as a result of the accidents increased $1,554 to $35,934. There were 63 accidents with over $100 damage, 59 fewer than in 1969, and 22 accidents with damage under $100, 33 fewer than in 1969.

Persons injured in 1970 accidents were 27, one less than the previous year and 50 citations were issued as a result of accidents in 1970, 21 more than in the previous year.

Theft accounted for 94 of the 323 complaints investigated by the department during 1970 and vandalism for 92 of the complaints. Police also investigated 41 disorderly conduct complaints. There were 74 juveniles.

Democrat could win "if we're still in Vietnam, if the economy's still like this."

"But if we have peace, and the economy's back, and we've got some programs that are of interest to people, then Richard Nixon is unbeatable."

Meanwhile, the senator from Kansas is likely to become a more frequent visitor to the White House. "When he greets me," says Bob Dole fondly, "he always remembers to put out his left hand."

Threat in Laos Rising, Laird Feels

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the Communist command's armed threat has diminished in South Vietnam in the past year while increasing in southern Laos.

And in Cambodia, he said, "It remains at approximately the same level," but added: "We are watching this matter very carefully."

Laird also told a news conference prior to his departure from Vietnam that U.S. forces will meet or exceed every one of President Nixon's deadlines for troop withdrawals, citing again Nixon's criteria for pullouts: "progress in Paris, progress in Vietnamization and the size of the enemy threat."

'Orders' Used In Defense Of Sgt. Hutto

Attorneys Admit Soldier Fired at My Lai Civilians

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — The lawyer for Sgt. Charles Hutto said today that the soldier shot at everything he saw in My Lai, but is only intent was to follow orders from the officers in charge of the assault.

And unless the government can prove that Hutto entered the village with the specific intent to murder Hutto must be acquitted, said Edward McGill of Miami.

Hutto is charged with assault with intent to murder at least six My Lai civilians during an infantry assault March 16, 1968. The trial judge has ruled that Hutto cannot use obedience to superior officers as a defense.

"Charlie did what Charlie was told and went through the town and when he saw something, he shot it," McGill said as he opened the defense case at Hutto's court-martial.

The lawyer said, in his 30-Turn to Page 2, Col. 2

Astronauts Go Into Isolation

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts today began a 21-day period of preflight medical isolation to minimize exposure to disease or illness such as the measles contact which forced a late substitution in the Apollo 13 crew last year.

Astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell and their backup crew generally will be restricted to three areas of the Kennedy Space Center. These are the crew living quarters, the training building and the launch pad.

They also will make one or two trips to nearby Patrick Air Force Base for practice flying in jet airplanes. Movements from one point to another will be watched carefully so the astronauts do not contact unauthorized personnel.

The Apollo 14 launching is scheduled Jan. 31 with Shepard and Mitchell to attempt a landing in the moon's Fra Mauro Highlands to search for ancient

Commenting on U.S. troop morale after a four-day visit to Vietnam, Laird told a final news conference that a problem existed in the ranks.

"Our commanders are well aware of the problems involved in a war that is winding down," he said. "But I believe this winding down is a good problem for our commanders to have."

Asked whether U.S. soldiers in Vietnam are displaying reluctance to expose themselves to the dangers of combat in a war that is winding down, Laird said:

"I've had an opportunity to talk to many young men in Vietnam. I've found this attitude expressed by a few but I believe it is a minority position."

"I feel the best way for us to proceed and to go forward in Vietnamization is to see that they are on the alert and are careful, but at the same time ready to pursue and destroy the enemy where necessary."

He said the United States has made a genuine effort to cut its casualties, "and the President and I won't be satisfied until this figure is down to zero."

Laird said his talks and field tours had "reinforced the conviction" that Vietnamization of the war is ahead of schedule.

"As a result," he said, "there will be withdrawals of additional thousands of military personnel this year."

He gave no new withdrawal figures, saying Nixon would announce the next target in April. But he said the current target—a ceiling of 284,000 U.S. troops in the country by May 1—would be met or exceeded. The U.S. Command announced today that the total strength last week dropped to 332,500, the lowest in more than four years.

From Saigon, Laird flew to Honolulu for meetings with Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander in chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific.

Ali Appeal to be Heard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court granted a hearing today to heavyweight fighter Muhammad Ali on his claim that he was entitled to exemption from the draft as a religious conscientious objector.

The court's action, announced in a brief order, clears the way for Ali's fight in March with Joe Frazier for the heavyweight boxing championship.

Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, was convicted 3½ years ago for refusing induction into the Army. He claimed he was entitled to an exemption as a Muslim minister.

His conviction carried a five-year sentence, and boxing officials stripped him of the title he had won from Sonny Liston.

Had the court turned down Ali's appeal it would have been highly unlikely that the fight with Frazier would have been held.

Rich Bout

The bout, scheduled for New York City on March 8, will be the richest in history. Ali made a fight comeback last October scoring a technical knockout over Jerry Quarry and coming out with a victory in December over Oscar Bonavena.

In the appeal, Ali's lawyers claimed government wiretapping listened in on his private telephone conversations. The appeal also challenged the validity of orders from what Ali called a "blkywhite" Selective Service System.

But, in granting review, the court limited its consideration to the single point whether the government was wrong in characterizing Ali's objections to Army duty as "political and racial" rather than "religious."

Ali is a Negro. The hearing will be held at a date to be fixed in a few months. The most likely prospect is in April.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., in a note following the court's order, said he favored hearing the wiretap allegations as well as the conscientious objector issue.

The same note said Justice Thurgood Marshall did not participate in the case.

Marshall is a former chief counsel for the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund. His self-exclusion presumably was based on the fact the appeal was filed by Fund attorneys. This means Marshall will not take part in deciding whether Ali's conviction should stand.

It took the vote of four justices to grant Ali a hearing. Following customary practice, the court did not reveal who these justices are. All that surfaced was that Brennan favored hearing Ali.

FOND DU LAC (AP)—Army Sgt. Bryan R. Koehn, 20, of rural Campbellsport, who went overseas Dec. 18, was killed in action in Vietnam Jan. 4. His parents have been notified.

Business Taxes Being Cut Back

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon may take a

The upshot would be tax savings in the billions.

The plan is to permit businesses to deduct more for depreciation of equipment in the frugally on new plants and machinery.

The only news briefing of the day at the Western White House was scheduled for 3:30 p.m. EST, an unusually late hour coinciding with the closing bell on the New York stock exchanges in New York.

Treasury officials in Washington spent much of Sunday completing drafts of new regulations that would reduce government receipts by $1.4 billion in the first year, $3.7 billion in the second and more thereafter.

The idea is to encourage modernization of equipment and expansion of production. In recent months, industries have spent frugally on new plants and machinery.

Nixon, who has embraced deficit spending as a means of pumping new life into the sagging economy, has virtually completed work here on the new federal budget for the 1972 fiscal year that begins July 1.

In what he terms an expansionist budget, Nixon is expected to call for federal outlays of at least $225 billion during the bookkeeping year.

The President worked Sunday morning on his State of the Union message at his seaside villa, La Casa Pacifica. In the afternoon he continued his labors at his more elaborate office at the neighboring Western White House.

Since flying here last Tuesday with wife Pat and daughter Tricia, Nixon has taken few breaks from work that Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reported has averaged 8 to 10 hours daily.

Comparable schedules in Washington, he said, often stretch to 16 to 18 hours.

Nixon has taken a few swims in the heated pool at his home, walked on his private beach, driven once around Orange County and made one helicopter visit to Santa Catalina Island.

Nixon is expected to return to Washington Thursday. He probably will make an appearance there before members of the Republican National Committee after they formally name a successor to National Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton, who is being nominated to replace the fired Walter J. Hickel as secretary of the interior.

The national chairmanship is expected to go to Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, a Nixon stalwart. The White House won't comment on that matter, however.

Neither will anyone here deny rumors that 24-year-old Tricia Nixon is engaged to Edward F. Cox, a Harvard law student.

A prediction by Washington Star columnist Betty Beale that Tricia will become Mrs. Cox at a White House wedding on June 14 was discounted, in effect, by Constance Stuart, staff director to Mrs. Nixon, who said flatly that there is no wedding date or place at this point.

Appeal Turned Down

Hoffa Faces Longer Term

WASHINGTON (AP) —

James R. Hoffa, once among the nation's most powerful union leaders, faces up to an additional five years in federal prison following Supreme Court rejection today of an appeal from his 1964 pension fraud conviction.

The 57-year-old Teamsters Union president, serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering, lost his third attempt in the court to avert a new jail term.

The appeal, signed by five lawyers said 12 constitutional questions worthy of a court hearing arise from Hoffa's conviction in Chicago on charges of fraudulently obtaining loans from the Teamsters pension fund.

But the court, on a 7-0 vote and without comment, turned the appeal down. In the two earlier rounds the justices directed federal courts in Chicago to consider Hoffa's claims that illegal government eavesdropping should invalidate the conviction.

The last ruling against the stocky unionist was entered by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago Aug. 5.

Hoffa entered the federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa., March 7, 1967, to begin serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering. The U.S. Parole Board rejected his bid for early release in October 1969. The board said it would reconsider his case in March 1971.

The five-year pension fraud sentence would begin with completion of the jury tampering sentence.

Among the contentions raised in the appeal was that the trial judge violated Hoffa's constitutional rights to counsel and to be present at trial by submitting a copy of the indictment to the jury when Hoffa and his lawyers were not present.

Other arguments claimed "highly prejudicial newspaper stories" reached the jurors and that the government tailored its case against Hoffa on information gained through illegal electronic eavesdropping.

The government disclosed to the Supreme Court in April 1967 that it had electronically overheard a conversation involving a codefendant, S. George Burris, a New York accountant.

In hearings ordered by the Supreme Court, U.S. District Judge Richard B. Austin of Chicago and then the federal appeals court in Chicago concluded the eavesdropping did not significantly aid the prosecution.

Hoffa was fined $10,000 in addition to the five-year sentence. Burris was sentenced to 18 months and $5,000 fine. The others and their sentences: Zachary Strate Jr., a New Orleans builder, three years and $5,000 fine; Abe I. Weinblatt, a retired furrier living in Miami Beach, an hour in custody and $5,000 fine; Calvin Kovens, Miami Beach contractor, three years and $5,000 fine; Benjamin Drachnow, former Minneapolis businessman, five years; the late Samuel Hyman, Miami Beach realtor, a year and a day and $5,000 fine.

Neither will anyone here deny rumors that 24-year-old Tricia Nixon is engaged to Edward F. Cox, a Harvard law student.

A prediction by Washington Star columnist Betty Beale that Tricia will become Mrs. Cox at a White House wedding on June 14 was discounted, in effect, by Constance Stuart, staff director to Mrs. Nixon, who said flatly that there is no wedding date or place at this point.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

taxable income will pay an additional $31.20 in 1971. But over-all, Americans should have more money to spend in an inflationary economy. Those benefiting the most are the unmarrieds, the rich and those of low income.

For openers, the standard exemption for individuals and their dependents goes up from $625 to $650 for all of 1971. That means the IRS will be counting on claims of greater exemptions so the paycheck deduction is reduced.

At the lower earning levels, individuals will benefit this year from the second stage of a special "low-income allowance" designed to remove some low-income families from the tax rolls.

Under the old law, they could pay up to 70 per cent for taxable income. For 1971, the maximum rate is reduced to 60 per cent. It will increase allowable deductions, drop to 50 per cent in 1972.

A tax break is also provided for people who don't itemize deductions — such as some homeowners. This year's standard deduction will be 12 per cent or $1,500, whichever is lower, compared to 10 per cent or $1,000 in past years.

Single people, who have in the past been billed up to double the taxes borne by a married couple with the same income, benefit by revised rates which assure they won't pay more than 20 per cent more tax than the couple.

Some help is assured also this year for high-paid individuals whose income is generated by salaries, fees and commissions. Under the old law, they could pay up to 70 per cent for taxable income. For 1971, the maximum rate is reduced to 60 per cent. It will increase allowable deductions, drop to 50 per cent in 1972.

Threat in Laos Rising, Laird Feels

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the Communist command's armed threat has diminished in South Vietnam in the past year while increasing in southern Laos.

And in Cambodia, he said, "It remains at approximately the same level." But he added: "We are watching this matter very carefully."

Laird also told a news conference prior to his departure from Vietnam that U.S. forces will meet or exceed every one of President Nixon's deadlines for troop withdrawals, citing again Nixon's criteria for pullouts: "progress in Paris, progress in Vietnamization and the size of the enemy threat."

'Orders' Used In Defense Of Sgt. Hutto

Attorney Admits
Soldier Fired at
My Lai Civilians

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — The lawyer for Sgt. Charles Hutto said today that the soldier shot at everything he saw in My Lai, but is only intent was to follow orders from the officers in charge of the assault.

And unless the government can prove that Hutto entered the village with the specific intent to murder Hutto must be acquitted, said Edward McGill of Miami.

Hutto is charged with assault with intent to murder at least six My Lai civilians during an infantry assault March 16, 1968. The trial judge has ruled that Hutto cannot use obedience to superior officers as a defense.

"Charlie did what Charlie was told and went through the town and when he saw something, he shot it," McGill said as he opened the defense case at Hutto's court-martial.

Astronauts Go Into Isolation

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts today began a 21-day period of preflight medical isolation to minimize exposure to disease or illness such as the measles, contact which forced a late substitution in the Apollo 13 crew last year.

Astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell and their backup crew generally will be restricted to three areas of the Kennedy Space Center. These are the crew living quarters, the training building and the launch pad.

They also will make one or two trips to nearby Patrick Air Force Base for practice flying in jet airplanes. Movements from one point to another will be watched carefully so the astronauts do not contact unauthorized personnel.

The Apollo 14 launching is scheduled Jan. 31 with Shepard and Mitchell to attempt a landing in the moon's Fra Mauro Highlands to search for ancient Commenting on U.S. troop morale after a four-day visit to Vietnam, Laird told a final news conference that a problem exists in the ranks.

"Our commanders are well aware of the problems involved in a war that is winding down," he said. "But I believe this winding down is a good problem for our commanders to have."

Asked whether U.S. soldiers in Vietnam are displaying reluctance to expose themselves to the dangers of combat in a war that is winding down, Laird said:

"I've had an opportunity to talk to many young men in Vietnam. I've found this attitude expressed by a few but I believe it is a minority position."

"I feel the best way for us to proceed and to go forward in Vietnamization is to see that they are on the alert and are careful, but at the same time ready to pursue and destroy the enemy where necessary."

He said the United States has made a genuine effort to cut its casualties, "and the President and I won't be satisfied until this figure is down to zero."

Laird said his talks and field tours had "reinforced the conviction" that Vietnamization of the war is ahead of schedule.

"As a result," he said, "there will be withdrawals of additional thousands of military personnel this year."

He gave no new withdrawal figures, saying Nixon would announce the next target in April. But he said the current target—a ceiling of 284,000 U.S. troops in the country by May 1—would be met or exceeded. The U.S. Command announced today that the total strength last week dropped to 332,500, the lowest in more than four years.

From Saigon, Laird flew to Honolulu for meetings with Adm. John S. McCain Jr., commander in chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific.

"Charlie did what Charlie was told and went through the town and when he saw something, he shot it," McGill said as he opened the defense case at Hutto's court-martial.

Ali Appeal to be Heard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court granted a hearing today to heavyweight fighter Muhammad Ali on his claim that he was entitled to exemption from the draft as a religious conscientious objector.

The court's action, announced in a brief order, clears the way for Ali's fight in March with Joe Frazier for the heavyweight boxing championship.

Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, was convicted 3½ years ago for refusing induction into the Army. He claimed he was entitled to an exemption as a Muslim minister.

His conviction carried a five-year sentence, and boxing officials stripped him of the title he had won from Sonny Liston.

Had the court turned down Ali's appeal it would have been highly unlikely that the fight with Frazier would have been held.

Killed in Action

FOND DU LAC (AP) — Army Sgt. Bryan R. Koehn, 20, of rural Campbellsport, who went overseas Dec. 18, was killed in action in Vietnam Jan. 4, his parents have been notified.

Koehn, a 1969 graduate of Campbellsport High School, entered the service the same year. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Koehn.

More than $160,000 has been spent to place new air filtration units in the living quarters and in the training building, where the astronauts rehearse in spacecraft simulators. The filters are the type used in operating rooms and other critical areas in hospitals.

Apollo Mission Director Chesler M. Lee said: "We are going to have a medical officer on duty 24 hours, not only for the crew, but also for any of the primary contacts who feel they may have been exposed to anything that might transmit to the crew."

Lee said the isolation won't inhibit the ability of the astronauts to move around. "For example, if they want to move from their crew quarters to the handball court on the third floor for exercise, the hallway through which they walk will be cleared," he said. "A bell or a horn will sound, and the halls will be emptied."

During such moves, the astronauts will wear oxygen masks that will prevent them from inhaling surrounding air.

To travel the block between the quarters and training building or the 30 miles to Patrick Air Force Base, the spacemen will drive their own cars, which are provided with special parking areas, roped off and manned by security guards.

Business Taxes Being Cut Back

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon may take a personal hand in an expected announcement today that tax burdens on business will be eased—a move aimed at speeding economic expansion.

The only news briefing of the day at the Western White House was scheduled for 3:30 p.m. EST, an unusually late hour coinciding with the closing bell of stock exchanges in New York.

Treasury officials in Washington spent much of Sunday completing drafts of new regulations to grant businesses faster tax writeoffs on amounts they spend on new plant and equipment, and more thereafter.

The idea is to encourage modernization of equipment and expansion of production. In recent months, industries have spent frugally on new plants and machinery.

Nixon, who has embraced deficit spending as a means of pumping new life into the sagging economy, has virtually completed work here on the new federal budget for the 1972 fiscal year that begins July 1.

In what he terms an expansionist budget, Nixon is expected to call for federal outlays of at least $225 billion during the bookkeeping year.

Appeal Turned Down Hoffa Faces Longer Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Hoffa, once among the nation's most powerful union leaders, faces up to an additional five years in federal prison following Supreme Court rejection today of an appeal from his 1964 pension fraud conviction.

The 57-year-old Teamsters Union president, serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering, lost his third attempt in the court to avert a new jail term.

The appeal, signed by five lawyers said 12 constitutional questions worthy of a court hearing arise from Hoffa's conviction in Chicago on charges of fraudulently obtaining loans from the Teamsters pension fund.

But the court, on a 7-0 vote and without comment turned the appeal down. In the two earlier rounds the justices directed federal courts in Chicago to consider Hoffa's claims that illegal government eavesdropping should invalidate the conviction. The last ruling against the stocky unionist was entered by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago Aug. 5.

Hoffa entered the federal prison in Lewisburg, Pa., March 7, 1967, to begin serving an eight-year sentence for jury tampering. The U.S. Parole Board rejected his bid for early release in October 1969. The board said it would reconsider his case in March 1971.

The five-year pension fraud sentence would begin with completion of the jury tampering sentence.

Among the contentions raised in the appeal was that the trial

judge violated Hoffa's constitutional rights to counsel and to be present at trial by submitting a copy of the indictment to the jury when Hoffa and his lawyers were not present.

Other arguments claimed "highly prejudicial newspaper stories" reached the jurors and that the government tailored its case against Hoffa on information gained through illegal electronic eavesdropping.

The government disclosed to the Supreme Court in April 1967 that it had electronically overheard a conversation involving a codefendant, S. George Burris, a New York accountant.

In hearings ordered by the Supreme Court, U.S. District Court Judge Richard B. Austin of Chicago and then the federal appeals court in Chicago concluded the eavesdropping did not significantly aid the prosecution.

Hoffa, Burris and five codefendants were convicted of conspiracy and mail and wire fraud in a complex scheme to divert more than $1 million in loans from Teamsters pension funds into a real estate venture.

Hoffa was fined $10,000 in addition to the five-year sentence. Burris was sentenced to 18 months and $5,000 fine. The others and their sentences: Zachary Strate Jr., a New Orleans builder, three years and $5,000 fine; Abe I. Weinblatt, a retired furrier living in Miami Beach, an hour in custody and $5,000 fine; Calvin Kovens, Miami Beach contractor, three years and $5,000 fine; Benjamin Draganow, former Minneapolis businessman, five years; the late Samuel Hyman, Miami Beach realtor, a year and a day and $5,000 fine.

Neither will anyone here confirm or deny rumors that 24-year-old Tricia Nixon is engaged to Edward F. Cox, a Harvard law student.

A prediction by Washington Star columnist Betty Beale that Tricia will become Mrs. Cox at a White House wedding on June 14 was discounted, in effect, by Constance Stuart, staff director to Mrs. Nixon, who said flatly that there is no wedding date or place at this point.

A tax break is also provided for people who don't itemize deductions — such as some non-homeowners. This year's standard deduction will be 13 per cent or $1,500, whichever is lower, compared to 10 per cent or $1,000 in past years.

Mr. Barbershopper of the Year is John VerBockel. So voted the Appleton Valley Aires Barbershop Chorus of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.

Amidst applause, the chapter's immediate past president accepted the honor from last year's winner, Leroy London, in ceremonies climaxing the annual awards and installation dinner Saturday evening at the Columbus Club.

The men and their wives also paid tribute to Carl Schumacher, chorus director, with a gift of tools for the handyman.

James Tierney, president; Lee Ischinger, administrative vice president; Robert Thiel, program vice president; Jerry Miller, secretary; Bob Pautz, treasurer, and Arly Kuhn and Will Mackin, board members, were installed by Ken Fulton, area counselor.

Master of ceremonies was Del Bradford, 27-year veteran and charter member of the group.

Gales of Laughter greeted the comedy portion of the Barbershoppers' awards dinner. And no one seemed to enjoy the surprise program planned by John VerBockel more than Howard Palmbach and Robert Thiel.

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN BAY — Mrs. Jean K. Hutchinson, public relations director for the Planned Parenthood Center of Buffalo, is hopeful that the day will come when parents will develop an apologetic attitude for having large families.

In an interview during the two-day Population Growth Symposium sponsored by the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay Friday and Saturday, Mrs. Hutchinson contended that due to the high birth rate in the United States, "we are in a survival situation."

"We must cut our fertility rate because our quality of life is at stake." Not only is the quality of life affected, but "our standard of living, its further deterioration and the kind of world our children will live in is at stake."

She fears that unless families limit the number of offspring voluntarily, the government will step in and force their limitation. If the situation becomes more critical, "I don't think any child should come into the world who is not going to be loved and cared for," stated Mrs. Hutchinson, herself the mother of three.

"If everyone practiced birth control and had children only when they wanted them, we wouldn't have unwanted children."

According to recent studies, between one-third and one-half of the population growth in the U. S. in recent years can be attributed to unwanted children — children unwanted at conception.

She cited the mother's health and family stability as other arguments for the recognition of the controversial birth control issue.

"When couples have children when they can cope with them (financially, sexually and psychologically) you don't find men deserting their families," she maintained.

Relates Incidents

Mrs. Hutchinson, who has been with the Planned Parenthood Center for four years and in the field of social work since 1945, illustrated the need for family limitation, education and direction with the cases of three mothers with whom she worked.

"A 33-year-old single woman on welfare. Five illegitimate children. No one had ever recommended birth control. She knew the children's names and their fathers' names, but not their birth dates, and she didn't know their years in school. She didn't want them in the first place."

The second woman was 24. "She had 10 pregnancies. Eight living children. She was too tired to go for her six-week checkup after her last baby. When our Outreach worker came to her door, she burst into tears and said, 'God must have sent you.'"

The third woman had a congenital heart ailment. "After her second child, her Catholic doctor told her she should not have anymore children but he didn't tell her how not to. She had two more by the rhythm method. After the two extra ones, she went to a priest, and she and her husband were told to live as brother and sister. This caused serious problems in the home. Their children were taken in for counseling which reflected trouble in the home. Finally a worker in the Catholic Charities sent her to the Planned Parenthood Center."

Clergy Interested

The clergy is not indifferent to the rising voice of the advocates of planned parenthood. There are 130 members of the clergy on the center's advisory committee.

"Our clergymen," she noted, "did much of the abortion counseling before the abortion law went into effect July 1 in New York State."

The absence of the Catholic clergy is noticeable. One priest serves on the National Planned Parenthood Board. Overall, however, "there are varying opinions among the Catholic clergy. Some feel contraception is a matter of conscience and some don't."

Minority Geared?

Is the emphasis on cutting down the number of children per family being forced upon the poor and minority groups?

Negative was the reply.

Mrs. Hutchinson doesn't think Planned Parenthood advocates "are legislating to minority groups. They are suggesting two children-families for everyone not just for the poor. The over-population problem is with the middle class which is the bulk of population."

"There is strong feeling in the black community concerning birth control," she admitted. Many militants feel that "the white establishment is once again trying to cut down their number. I don't think this is true of an agency like Planned Parenthood. We're totally interracial from the top down."

The public relations director was emphatic in her demands for more education in the area of birth control, more available service, more research and the legalization of abortions.

Eighty-five per cent of the medically dependent women in the U.S. of child bearing age still do not have contraceptive care, she said.

Mrs. Hutchinson added, "We need more research for better methods. We need legalized abortion as a back-up for these methods."

"Hopefully women will resort to birth control first. If the birth control method doesn't work, then abortion."

Better Marketing System Adds More Value to Food

It takes money to perform the functions of marketing but at the same time these functions make products more valuable to the user, says Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Put simply, the marketing system brings the food to you. Starting with the raw material, marketing puts it in a usable form, at a convenient location, when you want it and often at the price you are willing to pay.

When considering the improvements in food you are getting more for your marketing dollar than ever before — more ready to eat foods, more variety and more types and sizes of packages to meet your needs.

Marketing costs are rising because of increased quantities of food that must be handled, the higher cost of wages, transportation and advertising, plus, the convenience marketing is adding to foods.

The marketing picture is constantly changing. The number of wholesalers is declining. As more retail chains and large supermarkets assume the wholesaling functions this number will continue to drop.

The number of grocery stores is declining. This is due to the many small grocery stores going out of business. The big area of growth is in the discount supermarket and the convenience food stores.

Foods introduced over the last ten years, such as instant mixes, diet and ready to eat foods, make up half of the total food sales.

Many of the "new foods" are made possible by emulsifiers, stabilizers and preservatives that give a better texture, flavor and have better keeping qualities.

Processes such as vacuum drying and freeze drying have taken on great commercial importance. Freeze dried is almost synonymous with instant coffee.

Packaging innovations include plastic cooking pouches, light weight steel cans, flexible films and plastic containers.

In the future all the checking out, inventory and ordering for a supermarket may be done by computer. Currently a computerized system is being tested.

Do Women Teachers Get Equal Treatment?

MADISON (AP)— There are no women professors in 27 University of Wisconsin departments and the women professors who are employed earn an average of $3,744 less than their male colleagues, a survey shows.

The interim report prepared for the University Faculty Council also notes women associate professors make an average of $1,158 less than the men, assistant professors make $219 less and instructors make $363 less.

The administrators who prepared the report, however, note that other variables which affect salaries include degrees held, experience, reputation, publications and age.

"If within areas of specialization, women with education, experience, and national recognition comparable to men are given less consideration than men in hiring and promotion, then discrimination on the basis of sex does indeed exist," the report said.

But "more intensive research would be needed to determine the reasons for the salary differentials to find out if indeed there is unjustified discrimination," commented Elwin Cammack, a university assistant vice president.

N.Y. Abortion Law Called Success

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — New York state's adjustment to its new abortion law has been "remarkably successful, on the whole," in the view of Dr. Walter Rogers, one of the guest speakers at a population symposium at the Beaumont Motor Inn Friday.

This is particularly true, the associate medical director of Planned Parenthood-World Population indicated, in view of New York's sudden changeover.

The state had one of the most restrictive laws against abortions for over 100 years, he noted. "Suddenly, on April 10, 1970, it found itself with one of the most liberal in the world — effective July 1, 1970.

He told an audience of some 150 symposium participants that liberal law's effects in terms of numbers of abortions performed, income levels of patients, facilities, complications, and death rates.

Personal Views But he said he thought people were first entitled to know his personal views as an obstetrician-gynecologist.

I believe every woman of should have the right to decide whether and when she will have a child and not be subject to the coercion of any kind. I believe it's a medical matter and there should be no laws dealing with it.

He said he believes abortion information should be part of any maternal health program.

"I realize that many religious or philosophies consider it immoral. Others think that compulsory motherhood is immoral. Neither should impose their views on the other," Dr. Rogers said.

"I feel strongly that pregnancies should be prevented, not terminated. But until safe, effective contraceptives and regulation indicated, in view of New York's sudden changeover.

The state had one of the most restrictive laws against abortions for over 100 years, he noted. "Suddenly, on April 10, 1970, it found itself with one of the most liberal in the world — effective July 1, 1970.

He told an audience of some 150 symposium participants that liberal law's effects in terms of numbers of abortions performed, income levels of patients, facilities, complications, and death rates.

I believe every woman of should have the right to decide whether and when she will have a child and not be subject to the coercion of any kind. I believe it's a medical matter and there should be no laws dealing with it.

The experience of four clinics, which had no deaths in 20,850 abortions is "impressive," in his opinion.

"If abortions become widely available in all states, these clinics should be studied," Rogers suggested. They have several advantages over hospital settings including economy, elimination of red tape, a shorter stay for the woman and apparent safety, he said.

He would recommend their establishment near medical centers.

Out of Wedlock Babies He mentioned one effect he thinks will be documented in the future.

"It appears the number of abortions decreases markedly the number of out of wedlock pregnancies," he said. Prior to the change, he pointed out, these were growing at an alarming rate. Now the charts show that in all but youngest age levels the abortions in 1970 exceed the out of wedlock birth figures for 1969.

"It seems likely out of wedlock births will show a decline in New York between July 1, 1970, and 1971.

Dr. Rogers included problems in his talk. There is a definite risk to abortion, he said, although the 12 deaths in New York since the law changed are fewer than the 20 deaths recorded in 1968 and 1969 before abortion was legal.

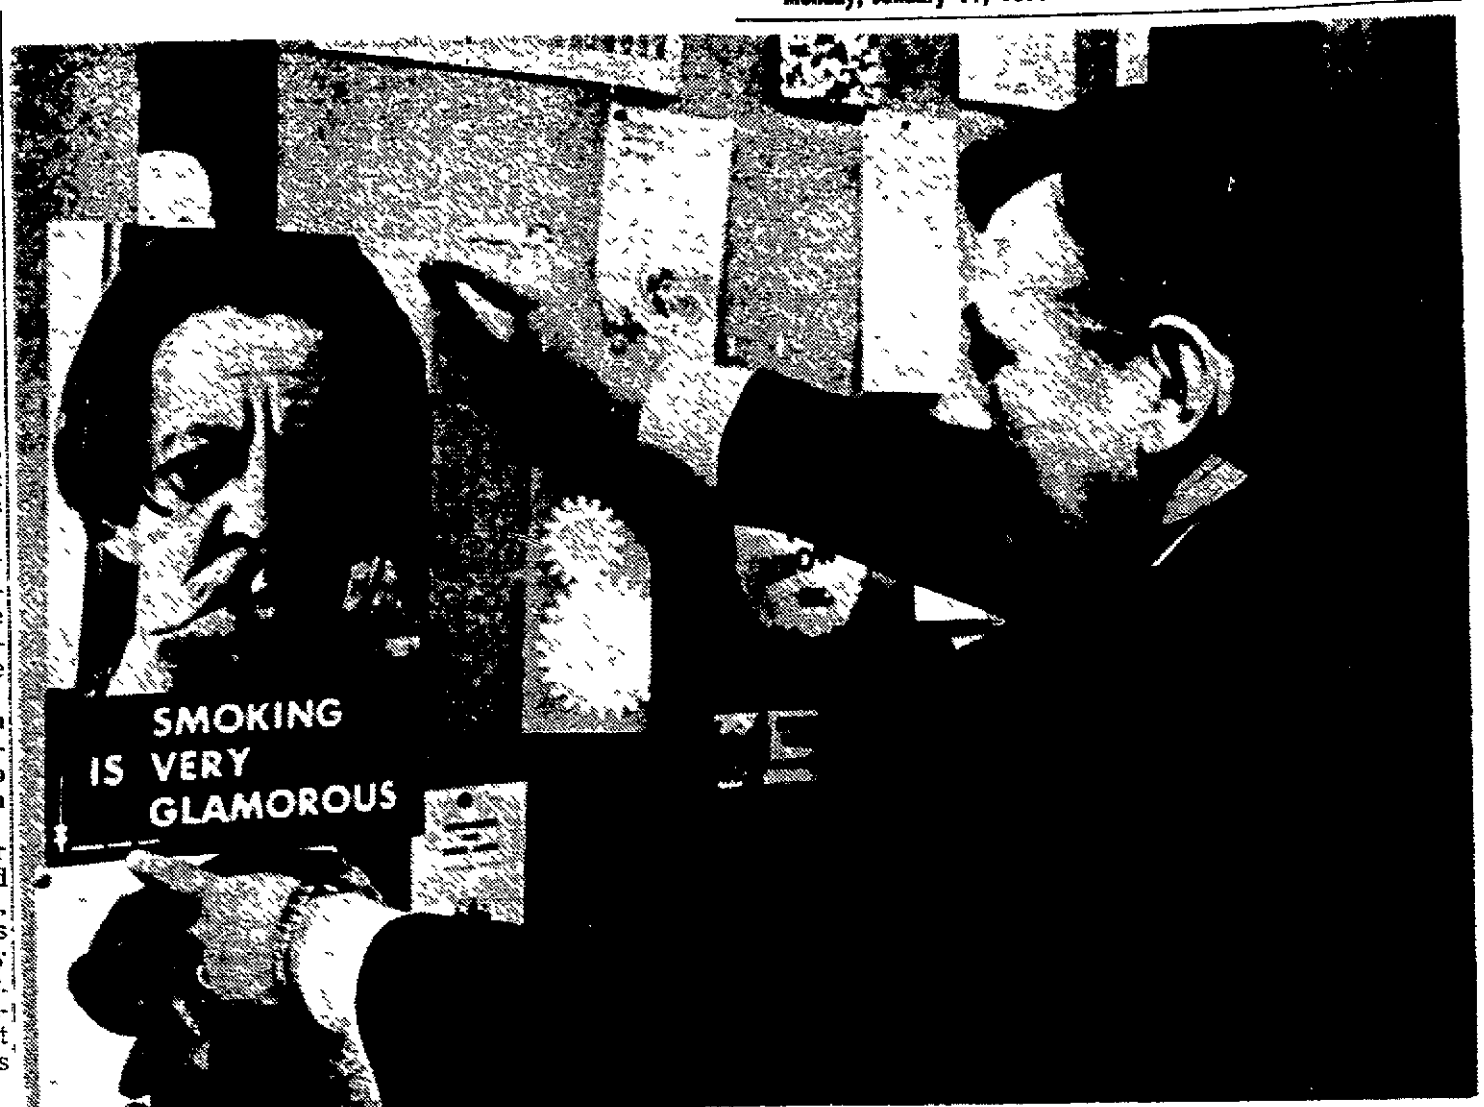

"Women may risk prematurity" of future births, he said, which is believed to increase in direct proportion to the number of abortions. The premature birth rate is 10 per cent for those with no abortion history, but 20 per cent of those with several abortions, he illustrated.

Early Abortions New York's experience also has demonstrated that abortions should be performed as early as possible, he said.

Dr. Harriet Pilpel, a New York lawyer, amended Dr. Rogers speech by noting that some people seem to expect execution of the new law to be perfect in six months.

"When something has been criminal for well over a century, it's not reasonable to anticipate a perfected system in six months," she said.

Dr. Jean Hutchinson, director of public relations for Planned Parenthood Center in Buffalo, N. Y., described how advocates could communicate family planning concepts to the public. One model program in Louisiana was conducted without publicity via personal contacts with women in hospitals.

National Poll

Outagamie Residents Move Less Than Most Americans

NEW YORK — Just how often are residents of Outagamie County and those in the neighboring states likely to pick up and move to another address?

How many of them have been living in the same house for more than five years? According to the latest figures on the mobility of the population, from governmental and other sources, nearly one person out of every five in the United States is living in a different house than he occupied five years ago.

As for local families, they are less likely to pull up stakes and move than are people in most parts of the country.

Data gathered over the years by the Department of Commerce shows that the proportion being 47 percent.

of movers in any given area remains quite steady, year after year.

The most recent figures covering Outagamie County show that some 34,782 local residents changed their addresses at least once in a period of five years.

Included in this total were 23,267 who merely moved to other locations within the county and 11,515 who came from outside the county to make their homes in the local area.

Some, on the other hand, moved to other sections of the country. How many is not known, pending the 1970 census data on mobility, expected to be released toward the end of 1971.

What the figures show, in essence, is that 40 out of every 100 people in Outagamie County, over the age of five, were living in different houses than they had occupied five years before.

The 40 percent of movers was smaller than in the United States as a whole, the average status dictates the move.

The comparable figure in the East North Central States was 46 per cent and, in Wisconsin, 43 per cent.

The breakdown for area countries is: Calumet, 6,823 moved out, 3,532 moved within, and 3,291 were new arrivals.

Included in this total were 6,774 moved within and 4,577 other locations within the county and 11,515 who came from outside the county to make their homes in the local area.

A number of situations and circumstances are cited for the restlessness shown by so many who move out, two-thirds of those who move do so because of housing or some other necessity, or choice involving living arrangements.

Other reasons given for moving were "to take a job" or "to look for work" or because of a "job transfer."

Often a change in marital status dictates the move.

Fresh Bakery Sold, Name Changed

Elm Tree to Expand Appleton Plant

A name change coupled with the sale of a portion of its operation and a major $2 million building expansion program for the Elm Tree Baking Co. were announced today by B. A. Pfeifferle, president.

Elm Tree, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Rich Products Corp. of Buffalo, N. Y., is one of the nation's largest producers of frozen dough and fully baked products for retail, food service and in-store bakeoff customers.

With the sale of its fresh baked goods division to Bake Rite Baking Co. of Stevens Point for an undisclosed sum, Elm Tree will become Elm Tree Frozen Foods, Inc., with renewed concentration on producing frozen dough and baked products for national distribution.

Announcement of Sale The announcement of the sale of the fresh baked goods operation to Bake Rite was made jointly by Homer C. Loomans, Bake Rite president, and Pfeifferle.

Loomans stated that Bake Rite was embarking on construction of a completely new facility in Plover, near Stevens Point, and also was building a new distribution center in Appleton. Bake Rite now distributes its products throughout all of Wisconsin, Upper house and loading dock areas. This is the second major expansion undertaken by Elm Tree since the company moved to its sprawling 91,000 square foot facility on W. College Avenue in 1956.

Because of Elm Tree's renewed emphasis in the frozen foods field, the Elm Tree expansion program has become vital to the growth policies of the parent company, Pfeifferle explained.

Insurance 'Overpayment' Charged

Bomb Dismantled by Experts at Manitowoc

Post-Crescent News Service

MANITOWOC — An Army demolition team from Fort Snelling, Minn., near Minneapolis, dismantled a homemade bomb this morning in downtown Manitowoc.

The team was called in Sunday night after the device was discovered in an alleyway on the west side of the Kelvinator Commercial Products plant between Quay and Franklin streets.

According to Manitowoc Police Chief Elmer Scherer, his department received a call shortly after 9 p.m. Sunday night from someone monitoring a citizens band radio broadcast. The caller said he heard someone bragging over the air that he had placed a bomb on the west side of the Kelvinator plant.

Police investigated immediately and found what appeared to be a stick of dynamite with several wires coming out of it. The police and fire department immediately evacuated about 30 residents of the Hotel Howard located on South 8th street, across the alley from Kelvinator. They also closed down Dick and Ann's Cafe and the Pup Tavern, also on 8th street.

Four blocks were set up at both Quay and Franklin streets and the entire square block area was evacuated and sealed off.

A dynamite with the Bahr Construction Co., of Manitowoc, was called in to look at the device and told authorities he would not attempt to disarm it.

The demolition team was called at 9:30 p.m., but because of heavy snow in the western part of the state did not arrive until 6:30 a.m. today. The two experts worked for about 20 minutes before giving the "all clear."

Chief Scherer said the device was a single stick of dynamite with a blasting cap on one end, wrapped in electrician's tape. There was no electrical charge connected to it, and nothing trigger an explosion.

The chief said that while his department immediately evacuated about 30 residents of the Hotel Howard located on South 8th street, across the story in Madison.

Anderson in Race For Executive Post

Kaukauna Mayor Gilbert Anderson today became the seventh person to announce his candidacy for the new office of Outagamie County executive.

Anderson, 47, last spring was elected to his second term as Kaukauna's chief executive. He also is in his second year as chairman of the Fox Valley Council of Governments, the area's metropolitan planning agency.

In a prepared statement this morning, Anderson said: "After much discussion with many local citizens, I have decided to run for county executive. The job will carry many and varied responsibilities, and I wanted to make sure that I could fulfill these necessary requirements, if elected."

"Born and raised in a rural area and having been an alderman and mayor for nearly 17 years, I believe that I understand the problems, and am capable of coping with the varied problems, of both the urban and rural areas of the county."

"In addition, as COG chairman, I have had the opportunity to see and know most of the problems which directly affect our daily lives."

"There are three paramount attributes a county executive should possess — an understanding and ability to handle county budgets, an ability to make daily decisions which are part of any chief executive's life and an ability to assemble and utilize personnel as an effective staff to accomplish these purposes."

"A county executive also must be aware of political and practical possibilities and impossibilities."

"I believe that a county executive must be able to successfully mold a team of people capable of carrying out his directives. The necessity for a close working relationship with county board members and the ability to work with them on daily problems also is a primary requirement of this office."

"In addition, the executive's role will be that of spokesman for intercounty cooperation and p.m. Jan. 19 at the Veterans' Memorial Building."

Airman Highly Positioned

PHAN RANG, SOUTH VIETNAM — Being a member of the only U.S. Air Force installation coordination center (ICC) in South Vietnam is quite a job. And that job belongs to Sgt. Ronald E. Witthuhn of Appleton.

The 22-year-old noncommissioned officer, who has been in Vietnam since August, acts as both a radio-telephone operator and as a liaison between the ICC and the Korean army.

He is the son of Mrs. Marian E. Hawk of 533 N. Linwood Ave. and a 1967 graduate of Appleton High School-West. He joined the Air Force in Nov. 1970.

His duty station is an observation perch high above Phan Rang Air Base.

"One of our jobs is keeping track of where all outgoing artillery rounds are landing to insure the protection and safety of our men," remarked Witthuhn, a member of the 35th Security Police Squadron.

"It's really beautiful up here," the sergeant commented from his perch, surrounded by communications equipment.

"You can really see a lot of the countryside."

"Sure there's a lot of responsibility. It comes with the mission of base defense. But I wouldn't trade the feeling of satisfaction I get from the job for anything."

"With all the artillery firing and patrols going on, we pretty well keep 'Charlie' away from the base."

"A good working relationship with everyone helps," added Witthuhn. "If we need help, they'll be there, and vice versa."

Coup Attempt By Army Units In Bolivia Fails

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — A group of army officers seized the armed forces headquarters in La Paz early today in rebellion against Bolivia's three-month-old leftist military regime. A few hours later President Juan Jose Torres announced the revolt had been crushed.

In a broadcast to the nation Gen. Torres said some leaders of the coup had taken refuge in foreign embassies—chiefly in the embassy of Peru. The leaders were described as mostly young officers. Torres called them right-wingers and reactionary subversives.

In the early hours, the rebels announced they were acting to keep Bolivia from being delivered to "another imperialism as dismal as that of North America." They did not identify it.

Torres said in his broadcast: "This adventure, which had support of sinister foreign interests, has been totally smashed and at this moment its concrete and possible ramifications are being carefully investigated."

"Some of its members have resorted to the easy expedient of diplomatic asylum..."

Back to Normal
Torres assured the nation that a state of normality had been restored and urged workers to report to their jobs as usual.

Early in the revolt, Col. Jorge Sanchez, a rebel spokesman, claimed several top loyalist officers at military headquarters had been seized by the rebels, including the army commander, Gen. Luis Reque Teran.

Shortly afterward a government spokesman termed the situation at that time dangerous but said loyalist troops had the headquarters surrounded and could move in at any time.

Three air force planes flew over the city after midnight and fired their machine guns into the air.

A local radio station said the planes dropped a bomb near the military headquarters, but there was no confirmation of this.

The leftist military government charged that the rebels were trying to set up a "dictatorship of the right." It warned that "the people will fight for their revolution."

Col. Sanchez, the rebel spokesman, said the rebel movement known as The Nationalist Troops of the Armed Forces had decided to overthrow the government because it was on the verge of handing the nation over to "another imperialism."

Torres Speaks
Torres took to the air at dawn for a brief broadcast, rallying his supporters and promising to put down the rebellion.

An interior ministry communiqué called on students, peasants and workers to mobilize against the "subversive right-wing plot." The communiqué called students and miners into the streets and told the peasants to arm themselves and come to La Paz "to defend the revolution."

The Central Bolivian Workers, the national union, told its members to assemble at their local headquarters "to be ready for the fight."

Sources close to the regime said the antigovernment leaders included Col. Hugo Banzer, transferred last week to a remote outpost on the Chilean border. Banzer was commandant of the military college but was accused three weeks ago of conspiring to assassinate Torres and install a new government.

'Orders' Used In Defense Of Sgt. Hutto

minute statement, that Hutto's job "was to walk in there and shoot at whatever he saw."

Referred to Medina

"This came from the man who had kept him alive and kept him going in Vietnam," McGill said. He was referring to Capt. Ernest Medina, commander of Charlie Company when it staged the assault with two other companies participating in a Task Force Barker operation.

He said that Hutto was a good soldier because, "He did what he was told, kept his nose clean and was dependable."

McGill said that Hutto had been provided no instruction by the Army on what might constitute an illegal order and had received only an hour of instruction on the Geneva accords concerning the handling of prisoners of war.

Task Force
McGill noted that Task Force Barker had been organized by Col. Frank Barker to root out the Viet Cong believed in the area. He said it was composed of three top rifle companies from the 11th Brigade, a unit of the Americal Division. Barker later was killed in action.

McGill's first witness was Roger Alaux Jr., of Tempe, Ariz., who was at My Lai as an artillery officer attached to Charlie Company.

He said that Medina told his troops in a briefing before the assault that they would encounter a large enemy force and that the only persons in the village would be the Viet Cong or their sympathizers.

Followed Orders
He said that in his opinion "as the order stood" the soldiers at My Lai followed orders. He said Medina had never expressed to him an unhappiness over the way the mission was handled.

Col. Kenneth Howard, the military judge, has ruled the jury they don't know how to make cannot hear testimony that Hutto was a psychiatrist who said Hutto was mentally incapable of disobeying any order at My Lai.

Hutto said in a statement taken by an Army investigator that the commander of Charlie Company, Ernest Medina, ordered his troops to destroy the village of My Lai and everything in it.

But Howard ruled last week that obedience to superior orders could be used a defense only if a soldier was incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong.

He said that became military law as a result of the Nuremberg War Crime trials after World War II.

Edward Magill of Miami, the civilian lawyer for Hutto, 22, of Tallulah, La., later told newsmen he had hoped to use Hutto's conditioned response to orders as a cornerstone of his defense. The ruling was a major blow, he said.

Fashion Leader 'Coco' Chanel Dies

PARIS (AP)—Fashion leaders on both sides of the Atlantic paid tribute today to Gabrielle "Coco" Chanel, the most influential dress designer of the 20th Century, who died Sunday night at her suite in the Ritz. She was 87.

Chanel "changed fashion more than any other designer," said Norman Norell, the dean of American designers. "She's the one who made women comfortable and in 1916 introduced expensive jersey cloth to high fashion. Tweed suits with jersey blouses, bell-bottomed trousers, trenchcoats and pea jackets, turtleneck sweaters and the colored and cuffed little black dress were Coco innovations in more price ranges than any other garment designed by a couturier.

bobbed her hair one night another fashion sensation was born. She made costume jewelry respectable.

The box jacket and simple skirt of the Chanel suit probably became the most famous perfume in the world and the foundation of her fortune. It outsells all other perfumes in 140 countries.

Millions who didn't know Chanel for her fashion designs knew her for the perfume she introduced in 1922 and named after her lucky number, Chanel No. 5.

As yet, the EEOC lacks the enforcement power that Brown has lobbied hard for. The commission is limited to conciliating companies and encouraging law compliance with federal law.

Women's Rights On Job Supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Praising the Women's Lib drive on behalf of the working girl, the government's top equal employment official promises more pressure to get her treated as well as working men.

Chairman William H. Brown III of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission says lower pay and slower promotions for women persist even though employers and unions recognize the discrimination.

"Unfortunately most people agree that it's there," Brown said in an interview, "but not enough, has been done about eliminating sex discrimination."

"And I think," he said, "we're just going to have to put a lot more pressure on most of the respondents—the labor unions, the private employment agencies, the state employment services and certainly the corporations."

He said the pressure first will be for voluntary compliance with the law. If that fails, he will be management to let their personnel know their own motions will depend on how well they handle equal opportunity programs as well as their other duties.

But the way to stop job discrimination, he said, is for top management to let their personnel know their own motions will depend on how well they handle equal opportunity programs as well as their other duties.

suits by complainants. Brown's EEOC last year handled complaints from 2,684 women and 355 men of discriminatory hiring, firing, pay, working conditions and restrictions and promotion opportunity on the basis of sex.

These accounted for a fifth of the 17,903 job discrimination complaints handled by the agency. Another two-thirds of the total was for racial discrimination.

Last year's complaints jumped 30 per cent from the 14,471 in 1969 and Brown predicted substantial increases will continue for five to 10 years as more workers take advantage of federal laws.

The Women's Lib groups encourage women to file complaints with the EEOC and in many cases file suits in the courts when EEOC conciliation with the companies involved is not successful, Brown said.

But the way to stop job discrimination, he said, is for top management to let their personnel know their own motions will depend on how well they handle equal opportunity programs as well as their other duties.

He said he hopes EEOC's prime task one day will be to help companies set up such programs rather than try to force compliance with federal law.

Nixon Can't be Sure Of Texas Support

Sen. Muskie Could Pick Up Following With a Softer Line on Oil Problems

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
DALLAS — The rosy prediction that John B. Connally's appointment as secretary of the treasury will give Texas 26 electoral votes to President Nixon in 1972 is a myth that can be understood only in the light of two sub rosa moves here, one Democratic and one Republican, shortly before he was named to the Nixon cabinet.
The Democratic move: him against his closest political allies — Lt. Gov. Gen. Barnes, Sen.-elect Lloyd Bentsen, National Committeeman (and national Democratic treasurer) Robert Strauss, ex-White House aide George Christian — almost certain to vigorously oppose Mr. Nixon.
There's One Chance
Yet, there is one chance of John Connally going into Texas to do battle on Richard Nixon's behalf: if the Democrats nomi-important figures in this state's tory Democratic establishment contacted Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine with suggestions intended to pin down Texas for him. Conceding the state to President Nixon only short months ago, these Democrats informed Muskie that Texas can be his if he softens his anti-oil, anti-gas rhetoric.

The Republican move: a key party operative, instrumental in holding Texas for Mr. Nixon at Miami Beach, delivered ill tidings to the President's political managers in Washington. His message: Mr. Nixon has slipped terribly in Texas already and may slip deep enough to lose the state in 1972.

Poor Reasoning
In sum, at the very moment of Connally's nomination, leaders of both parties here agreed that Nixon stock had taken such a drastic turn that any White House hope for John Connally to deliver the state to Mr. Nixon all by himself is simplistic political reasoning at its worst.

What ails Mr. Nixon in Texas was graphically disclosed in Washington by the Texas Republican leader shortly after the Nov. 3 election. His report: the President's staff is too political, his cabinet is not political enough, his political leadership is divided, and his handling of the economy is inept.
That bleak appraisal is underlined by the disillusionment of 1968 Nixon supporters here. Although big oil seems inextricably wedded to the Republicans, Mr. Nixon's attempt to roll back crude oil prices is deeply resented by well-heeled Texas businessmen generally as evidence of bad faith. Influential Dallas bankers, all for Mr. Nixon in 1968, now talk of him as "too political." Republican regulars privately blame the visits here of the President and Vice President Agnew and their omnipresence over national television for the stunning defeat of Rep. George Bush for the senate.

Muskie Now Marketable
That is why Texas Democrats, who last summer were forecasting a generation of Republican presidential victories here, have suddenly come to see Muskie as marketable in Texas. Their secret proposal that he soften his criticism of the oil-gas industry reflects this new optimism.
That adds up to a problem which Connally by himself, fully conceding his political prowess during three terms as governor of Texas, cannot come close to solving. Indeed, as though to buttress the myth, the White House itself tends to overemphasize Connally's role in carrying Texas for Hubert Humphrey in 1968. Connally barnstormed the state for Humphrey only after Mr. Nixon had begun to slip (and even then did not contribute perhaps his most formidable talent: raising vast sums of money).

But with all this it is by no means certain that Connally will actively support Mr. Nixon in 1972, as Republicans here generally expect. That would pit inate Sen. Edward M. Kennedy or a similarly unpalatable liberal ally, struggling with the nation's economic conundrum at the treasury, will be far removed from that battle.

Indeed, the conventional wisdom that Connally will be a poor treasury secretary but a political goon for Mr. Nixon in Texas may be exactly wrong. His unquestioned talents may be a large boon in helping Mr. Nixon right the slumping economy, but do nothing whatever for that sort of ticket, Barnes is about Mr. Nixon's slumping even now laying plans to control political condition in the Lone Star state.

Qualifying Secretary Laird's Remarks

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird's assurance that by somewhat after the middle of the summer "we will be in a position where the American combat responsibility will be removed as far as South Vietnam is concerned," certainly is a welcome one. But there were qualifications in Mr. Laird's remarks that are more disturbing.

"We will have an air support role and the combat forces which will be assigned to the logistics, support and artillery roles will not be a combat mission but will be a security mission," he went on to say. "They will be there to protect and support the forces that are assigned these roles," that is the South Vietnamese combat forces in all probability.

But the difference seems to be a slim one. What if the South Vietnamese forces are overrun — certainly our men will then be engaged in active combat. Presumably we will not inaugurate the largely ineffective "search and destroy" missions. But an actual end to American combat roles does not seem assured. The statement actually may have a two-fold purpose; one to continue to assure Americans that the Nixon Administration does intend to wind down the war or at least our participation in it, and secondly, that it might encourage the North Vietnamese to bargain more realistically in Paris. The latter's insistence is that we must set an absolute date when all our troops will be out. Mr. Laird pointed out that by the first of May our forces will be reduced to 284,000 from the high of 549,500 of two years ago, but he did not set any other dates and probably it is unrealistic to do so since the enemy can then merely sit back and wait.

There was no mention of Secretary Laird's remarks about American activities in other areas of Indochina — Laos and Cambodia. But Congress has denied funds to supply any ground troops in those areas. It seems likely that our air attack may be stepped up as part of that "logistical support." He did insist that the training and equipping of South Vietnamese troops is ahead of schedule although this is one of those opinion matters that suspiciously has that "light at the end of the tunnel" sound.

Admittedly winding down this war is no easy matter. Whether there would be widespread slaughter of South Vietnamese civilians if we simply pulled up all stakes and came home is speculative. Had we not become so involved we suspect that the Vietnamese would have worked things out one way or another without the immense loss of life and property. But there must be a careful differentiation made between a real concern for the people of South Vietnam and other parts of Indochina, a backing of an admittedly undemocratic regime in Saigon and merely saving face.

Despite the lack of campus protests this year, we suspect the opposition to the war has grown since Mr. Nixon took office. It now may include a number of members of that "silent majority" which didn't vote in November — or voted for Democrats.

Highlights of the Coroner's Report

Two significant trends are noted in the annual report of Coroner Bernard Kemps, one favorable, the other unfavorable.

There was only one infant crib death in Outagamie County in 1970, compared with seven in 1968 and six in 1969. Coroner Kemps notes that "this is in line with the national crib death reduction trend."

In years past crib deaths were often written off as caused by suffocation, implying some negligence on the part of the parents. But medical studies revealed that most of these deaths were not due to suffocation, although the exact cause has never really been pinpointed. A baby went to sleep at night in apparent good health, and was found dead in the crib in the morning. Autopsies did not reveal the cause of death.

Likewise, medical authorities are not certain why there has been a significant reduction in such deaths recently. But probably the fact that physicians and parents are more conscious of this danger is a factor.

Coroner Kemps also notes that there were two deaths in the county last year when snowmobile drivers drove onto a highway in the path of an oncoming car. "Stricter regulations for such vehicles are urgently needed," he comments.

State law prohibits operation of a snowmobile on a highway, but authorizes drivers to cross highways. Outagamie County's two deaths fell in the latter category. Registration of snowmobiles is now required. Coroner Kemps raises the question whether the drivers also should be licensed.

Studying Our Foreign Trade

The continued deficit balance of payments for the United States, caused primarily by our military commitments in other countries and certainly not limited to the war in Vietnam, prompted President Nixon wisely to appoint a Foreign Economic Policy Council to study the entire problem. We must hope that he pays more attention to whatever report the Council comes up with than he has to reports of other presidentially appointed commissions when their findings didn't coincide with his own.

Admittedly trade relations among countries with far different wage scales, standards of living, and industrial and agricultural production are not easy to work out for the benefit of all. The United States, for thirty years, has been moving toward a freer trade policy. Actually it started out that way too in that tariffs applied in the early years of our history were to raise revenue rather than to protect local industries. Such a source of income long ago became obsolete as the income tax in particular had to be enacted to pay the costs of the ever more services Americans were demanding — and our far-flung military commitments.

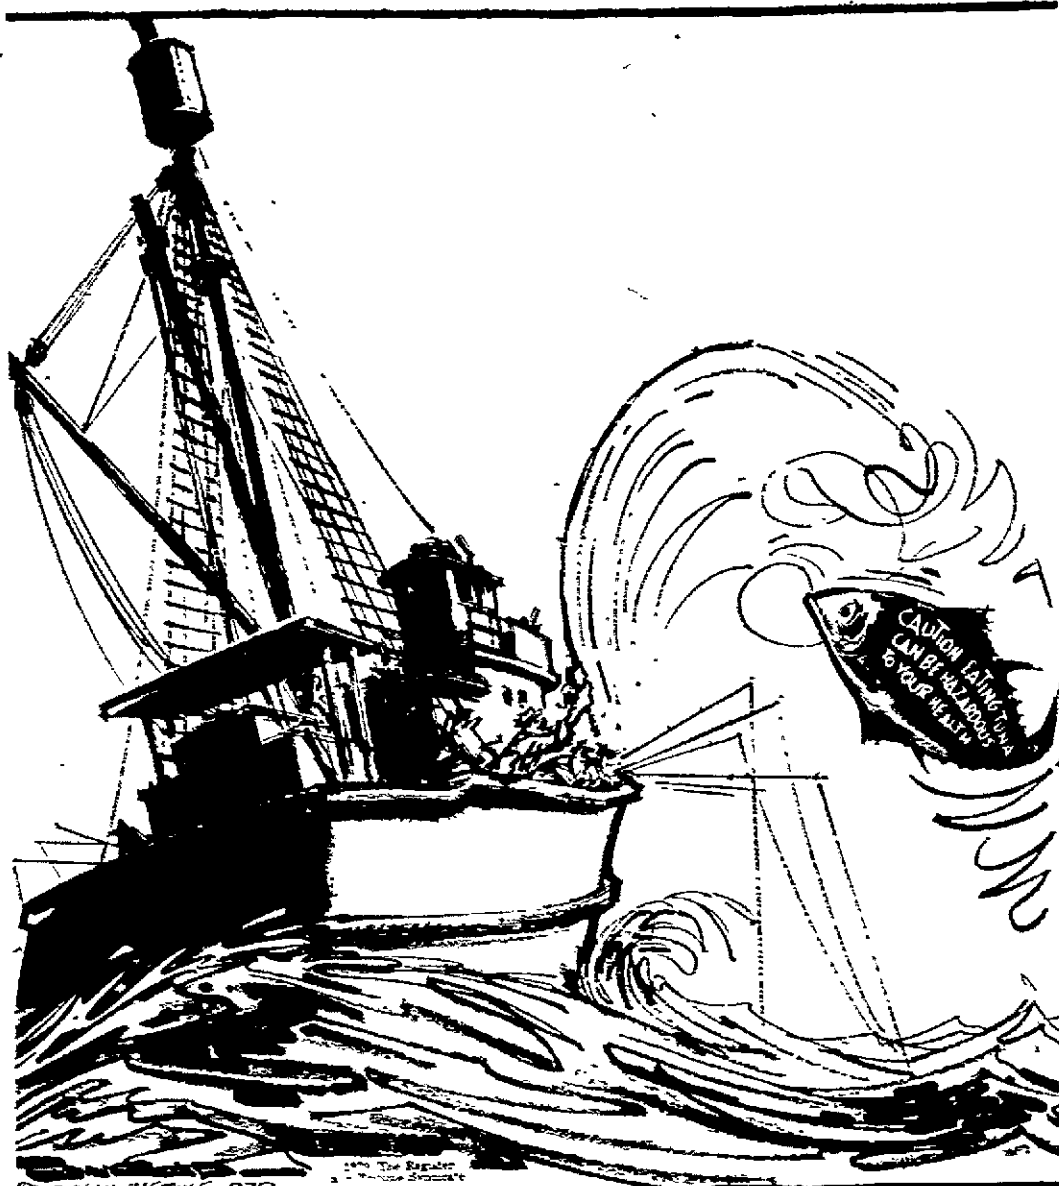

President Nixon, either in an effort to garner southern votes through Senator Strom Thurmond or because he felt it was in the economic interests of the United States, agreed to push for tighter quotas on textile imports which generally means those from Japan. The pressure was extended to shoes and to oil, although the latter has been mediated. Whatever such quotas or higher tariffs mean as far as benefits to the particular industries and to their employees, they also mean higher prices for Americans for locally produced goods. This is difficult to justify in the Administration's effort to slow down inflation and the ever-rising cost of living.

And then where do our military expenditures come in? After what surely must have been considerable diplomatic pressure, the European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in December announced an increase of their contributions to the joint defense system which might mean a cutback in our expenditures in that area. But Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird has already warned that the military budget will be up. This may be a diplomatic rather than an outright military move but if it goes through, those balances of payments aren't going to look much better.

Actually what really is important in all international trade is that it continues. There will have to be reasonable agreements made among nations with competing products and differences in costs. Wisconsin officials know this well because of imported cheese, as one example. But it is the flow of trade that in the long run is really important.

The study of the overall problem by the new Foreign Economic Policy Council should make interesting reading. We must hope that their recommendations become more important to Mr. Nixon than trying to sew up the South or any other section of the country for the 1972 elections. It is the overall economy of the nation to which he must pay special attention and perhaps the fall elections made that clear.

Ten-Year Nightmare

Isolation Bred by Vietnam Threatens National Security

BY KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

Last Monday, when he mentioned the Indochinese war in his televised conversation with four newsmen, President Nixon referred to it as a "nightmare." He did not do so in the general sense, deploring the "nightmare of war" or implying that all war is a nightmare. His description seemed to have a more specific implication.

The war is ten years old now, the longest in U. S. history, and the President's open characterization of it as a "nightmare" ties in with an attitudinal change that is becoming apparent in the White House. Administration policymakers have dropped the late spring and summer 1970 line that a "right-wing" threat ("also then characterized as "the specter of Ronald Reagan") keeps the President from winding down the war as fast as he would like.

Today, there is no important conservative opposition to the President's withdrawal plan. The Administration's tough image — covering the U. S. retreat with blazing guns and falling bombs — is aimed more at Hanoi than at Dallas, Phoenix or Orange County. Growing conservative disillusionment with the war has a number of stimuli.

Krahn, secretary; L. E. Webster, captain of host; George Eimmerman, principal sojourner; Ben Prugh, royal arch captain; Bert Phillips, third veilsman; Gus Jacobson, second veilsman; Lester Pardee, first veilsman, and R. W. Whittier, sentinel.

Mrs. William Anderson and Mrs. John Doerflinger were to present the program the next evening for fellow members of the Kimberly Study Club. Co-hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Joseph Maganetz and Mrs. Carl Krieser.

Al Wurtzel, retiring president, installed the new officers of the Seymour Kiwanis Club. They were M. A. Patchett, president; Forrest Huth, vice president; W. T. Reese, secretary; Charles Prosser, treasurer.

10 YEARS AGO

Heading the annual fund-raising campaign for Kaukauna's 16-year-old Youth Center were more than 200 students who were to solicit money in 21 districts.

Chairmen and co-chairmen in the various areas included the following young people — Lois Weck, Judith Guilfoyle, Richard Stegeman, Thomas Otto, Patricia Ludke, Ruth Van Zeeland, Ann Van Ofereen, Karen Vaneehoven, Margaret Carr, Judith LaBorde, Fawn Pechman, Patricia Haen, Kay Hartzheim, Francis Nelson.

Karen Schouten, Sandra Kern, Mary Schouten, Nancy Schouten, David Barribeau, John Robedeaux, Joan Ludvigsen, Sharon Gloudeman, Betty Fischer, Timothy Weigman, Timothy West, Mark McAndrews, Carol Bergeron, Kathleen Verhagen, Nancy Kerkhoff, Donna Weigman, Paula Koch, Sue Gerend, Barbara Otto, Donna Biese, Sue West, Patrick Weigman, Gary McGoe, Peter Voet and Jerome Hennes.

First, it is becoming apparent that our continued preoccupation with Indochina diverted — and to a lesser extent continues to divert — U. S. attention and military capability from other more strategic parts of the world. Moreover popular fatigue and disenchantment with the war is producing an isolationist psychology more intense than any since the Nineteen-Thirties. This, in turn, makes it hard for the Administration to mobilize public or Congressional support for policies and defense appropriations necessary to counter the growth of Russian international influence and military might that occurred during our Vietnamese involvement. Isolationism spurred by our Vietnamese misadventure is becoming a threat to national security.

American troops in Vietnam are hardly likely to imitate the French and German soldiers who mutinied during the last months of that other eminently futile conflict, World War I, but there is also no doubt that the Vietnamese imbroglio has played havoc with the morale and discipline of our military services.

Opposition to the Vietnamese war (especially to our military participation) was the major cause of escalating radicalism among college youth, and the current winding-down of the war is doubtless a major factor in the recent slackening of campus unrest. With 18-to-20-year-olds about to vote for the first time in the 1972 Presidential contest, conservatives are mindful that the Administration cannot afford to continue the war lest it court the overwhelming opposition of young voters.

Last, and more subtly, our continued involvement in the Indochinese war menaces the nation's economic recovery and the very strength of the dollar itself. America's massive war expenditure in Southeast Asia, precariously financed by the Johnson Administration, has brought about not only a cheapening of the dollar but a drastic imbalance in our international payments. The foreign countries that have accumulated these dollars are increasingly unhappy about keeping them rather than cashing them in for U. S. gold. Among other things, they feel that their retention of steadily inflating dollars amounts to a subsidy of our participation in the war in Indochina.

Now that President Nixon proposes rapid, deficit-spending expansion of the nation's economy, foreign bankers fear further weakening of the dollars they hold (in quantities large enough to withdraw all of America's gold). And they are getting more blunt in saying that if the U. S. intends to print new money for domestic purposes, it must also strengthen the dollar by reducing the outflow of military expenditures to East Asia. Late December saw teeth put in the warning when the Dutch and Belgian central banks cashed in $170,000,000 for U. S. gold.

The Nixon Administration is committed to economic expansion here at home, but if this is not accompanied by a winding-down of our military expenditures in Asia (thereby improving the U. S. balance of payments) it could bring about a European attack on the dollar — provoking a greater economic crisis than the present one.

Thus, President Nixon was hardly exaggerating — in terms of not just morality but the political interests of conservative Republicans — when he referred to the war as a nightmare. Furthermore, the low level of conservative opposition to his phased withdrawal from Indochina suggests that the message has gotten across.

Wisconsin Report

Jean Lucey May be Wisconsin's Own Martha Mitchell

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — To a degree that is difficult for inhabitants of other democratic countries to understand, when Americans choose their highest governmental officers they put the spouses of those men into the spotlight of public examination.

Thus when Gov. Patrick J.

Wyngaard

Lucey took the oath of office in the solemn ceremonies at the Capitol last week, Mrs. Agnes Jean Vlasis Lucey, his wife, simultaneously moved into the extra-constitutional and figurative but very real role as the new "First Lady" of Wisconsin, in the vocabulary of the women's page writers. It is in its own way as demanding and rigorous and highly spotlighted a role as that of the constitutional head of the state. It may be predicted with absolute confidence that Mrs. Lucey will soon be shown to be one of the most remarkable women who has ever held that figurative place in Wisconsin.

Some Anecdotes Distorted. In non-democratic and anti-democratic circles where the politically aware gather in Madison and Milwaukee, and perhaps in other localities, the anecdotes about this colorful and high-spirited lady are being revived, refurbished and often distorted completely. A few, a very few, of the formal portraits in writing that have thus far appeared have caught the true spirit and character of the new governor's wife who will be shown to be one of the most fascinating of her titular rank in the political history of this state.

Many Wisconsin "first ladies" deeply disliked their roles. Some of them entered upon their public careers with dread and foreboding.

But Jean Lucey is the ideal complement, wife, political and business partner and companion of the somewhat grave man who will hold the highest powers and the greatest responsibilities in Wisconsin government for the next four years.

It is not an exaggeration to suggest that if Pat Lucey had not met and married this pretty, dynamic, volatile and tireless working girl in Milwaukee 29 years ago he would not have succeeded as brilliantly as he has in private business or managed to continue the stubborn pursuit of a political distinction that came to him far later than to so many associates and friends whose climb up the ladder he aided so strategically.

My son and reporterial associate spent some time in covering the Lucey campaign. After observing Mrs. Lucey at the point of the greatest stress upon their mutual effort, he hit upon an explanation of her personality that is the most illuminating I have seen. To study Mrs. Lucey, he concluded, is to understand the miracle of that rockpile that was ancient Greece.

It is perhaps most effective to explain what Jean Lucey is not and cannot be. She has no guile. She does not fear plain speaking. She makes no apologies for her humble girlhood in inner Milwaukee city, or her hard work first as a clerk in a politician's office, later as the driving partner in the most literal sense of her ambitious husband.

She is not sophisticated, in the self-styled country club sense of the suburban aristocracy, she is not patient with fools or snobs. She cannot tolerate or understand pretense and deception. She is unable to summon any other feeling but contempt for those men and women in politics who tolerate disloyalty and deceit. She is utterly incapable of modifying a lifetime habit of candid speech, and honest affection and dislike, out of any contrived conception of her latter day station.

Does Not Fear Sentiment. She does not fear sentiment or the exhibition thereof. There have been other men, standing in the rotunda of the Capitol taking the oath of gubernatorial office, who surely would have wished their wives had shed honest tears during the ritual. Jean Lucey feels that when the people of Wisconsin made Pat Lucey governor, they got the mother of his children as a part of a big bargain.

If these lines appear unduly demonstrative to some readers who have sometimes found these reports on the antiseptic side, they are written for a purpose. Inevitably, the stories about this remarkable lady will be retold and exaggerated — by those who confound stilted style with grace and officious pretense with charm.

One example will suffice. Already the old story about the time Jean Lucey supposedly threw a cocktail into the face of a politician at a Democratic convention is being dusted off as an example of her temperament, which is honestly fused on the short side. There was a convention. There was a glass tossing incident. But the victim was not a politician. He was not a delegate.

Sadly but truly, he was a reporter, and he was a boor, and he deserved what he got.

Forgetfulness Often Is Deliberate Act

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of Freud's most substantial contributions to our understanding of the unconscious mind was his work on "memory" and "forgetfulness." He demonstrated conclusively that when we forget dates or misplace objects, such carelessness is usually a deliberate (if unconscious) act.

I used to forever be misplacing my lecture notes — also losing the addresses and forgetting the dates of my engagements — because of an aversion to public speaking. And it is probably true of all of us that we "misplace" bills and a good deal easier than checks; we don't want to pay the bills, but are eager to cash the checks.

Darwin, who understood this trick of the mind long before Freud, wrote in his autobiography: "I have made it a habit over the years always to make notes of any facts or observations that disagreed with my general theories; for I found my experience that such facts and observations were much more likely to escape from the memory than favorable ones."

Ellen Terry, in her memoirs, relates that one of the few occasions on which she forgot her lines was during the early performances of an Ibsen play. When she came to a certain speech, she simply "blew up" in her lines, and had to be prompted. This happened several nights in a row, and was quite uncharacteristic of Miss Terry, who was a "quick study" in all her parts. Finally, she sat down to analyze the trouble, and then recollected that the speech echoed a disturbing episode during her youth — so her unconscious mind rejected it.

Stephen Leacock invariably "misplaced" invitations to social functions he didn't want to attend. Dickens often forgot the names of his literary colleagues, which was his way of obliterating his competitors. Dwight Morrow, who rated to travel, would embark on a train trip and in the middle of the journey completely forget where he was going.

The most classical case of absent-mindedness is that of Painelevé, who was three times premier of France. This brilliant man would take a taxi home when his own car was waiting for him, and would often give the cabdriver his telephone number instead of his address.

Once, expecting a friend, he pinned a note on his own door: "Painelevé will return in 15 minutes. Please wait." On returning, he saw his own note and sat down on the steps to wait for himself. This "idiot" had been Minister of Aviation, Minister of War, and one of the most brilliant mathematicians Europe had produced in this century. What a field-day Dr. Freud would have had tramping around in that unconscious mind.

2 Youths Try to Rob Elderly Appleton Man

Detectives are trying to learn the identities of two boys, about 14, who attempted to rob an elderly Appleton man at knife-point Saturday night.

Fred Arnold, 78, of 808 N. Appleton St., told police the pair came to his home about 8:15 p.m. and asked to use the washroom. He let them in. When they returned from the washroom, Arnold said they sat in the living room and watched television.

Arnold told police that he asked the boys to leave and tried to push them out of the house. At this point, said Arnold, one of the boys pulled a knife, held it to his head and said, "If you don't give me some money I'm going to kill you."

"Go ahead and kill me, I don't care anymore," Arnold replied, adding "I'm not going to give you any money." With this, Arnold said, the pair came to his home and swore at him. The second youth took the knife, he said, and cut the phone wire so he couldn't call police. Then the pair fled.

Arnold described the first boy as about 5 feet 5 inches tall, about 130 pounds, with light brown hair. He wore a long tan coat. The other stood about 5 feet 6 inches tall and had a ruddy complexion. Arnold said he was of slight build.

Why thousands of Americans will spend $6,700 for a Mercedes-Benz that's three feet shorter than American luxury cars.

Mercedes-Benz engineers believe both hands belong on the wheel. So they built four critical controls into a single stalk and positioned it a finger's length away.

In its recommended position, the seat seems too far from the wheel. And it's too unyielding to be called "luxurious."

But that strange seat position lets you drive with the wheel at arm's length and your back firmly against the seat's. And that gives you better control.

The "unyielding" seat, it turns out, was designed by orthopedic surgeons to give firm support. You'll appreciate it more after seven hundred miles than you do after seven.

If you press the floor switch to get your high beams, you'll get a squirt in the windshield instead.

That's because a curious-looking stalk, positioned precisely a finger's length from the wheel, embodies four different controls.

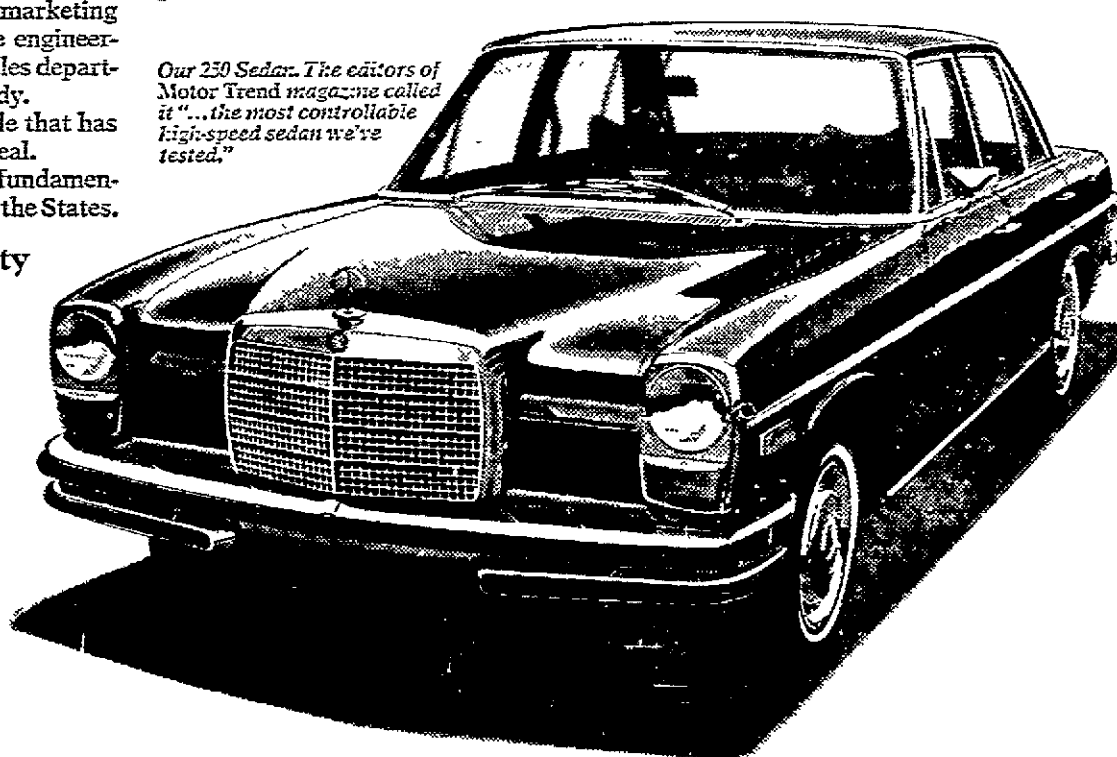

High and low beams, turn signals, windshield wipers, and their two-speed control all can be operated without taking your hands from the wheel. Or your eyes from the road.

Such oddities, admittedly, take some getting used to. But there's a reason for every one. And, before you know it, the oddities have become necessities.

No domestic sedan . . .

It is at the wheel a man discovers the performance characteristics that make

Our 230 Sedan. The editors of Motor Trend magazine called it "...the most controllable high-speed sedan we've tested."

Mercedes-Benz unique among the world's motor cars. Mercedes-Benz engineers believe that a car's abilities should be limited only by road and conditions—not by its own design. Every Mercedes-Benz has fully independent suspension front and rear. A design concept used, without exception, on 200-mph grand prix cars.

It provides the maximum possible cornering power over a variety of road surfaces.

No domestic sedan has it.

Every Mercedes-Benz is equipped with four massive disc brakes. Standard, not optional. Because, to our way of thinking, it's unthinkable to relegate the best brakes you can build to the option list.

No domestic sedan has them on all four wheels.

And every Mercedes-Benz has a steering system so precisely balanced that the car seeks a straight path on its own.

No domestic sedan can match it.

Even the grand Mercedes 600, a three-ton limousine, notes Motor Trend, "...will outrun and outmaneuver many sports cars."

Join the club

But the final word on the distinction between Mercedes-Benz and domestic luxury cars belongs to a group of Mercedes-Benz owners.

Owners so enthusiastic that they've formed thirty-two chapters of the Mercedes-Benz Club of America.

Each year they hold more than 60 local competitions and 3 national rallies.

It's their opportunity, in performance events, to extend their cars to the limits of which a Mercedes-Benz is capable.

Not everyone joins the club.

Mercedes-Benz owners who rally their cars are a relatively small share of our owners. But, then, no domestic luxury car even has a club.

Our pursuit of engineering ideals has placed Mercedes-Benz automobiles among the world's most costly.

With such popular options as power steering, white sidewall tires, and AM/FM radio with rear-seat speaker, you can spend nearly $6,700.

And thirteen of our models cost more, including the 300SEL 6.3—dubbed by Road & Track "merely the world's greatest sedan..."—at $15,878.

Huber Prepares for Challenging Role

By FRED MILVERSTEDT Associated Press Writer MADISON (AP)—Democratic Speaker Robert T. Huber is busily setting up housekeeping in the State Assembly, his "home away from home." He has fond hopes that when the 1971 legislature convenes Jan. 19, is Republican "neighbors" won't break up the housewarming.

Now entering his 12th term in a state government career that dates back to 1948, Huber has seen it all before. He was speaker in 1965.

"This is kind of like my second home," the 50-year-old West Allis veteran said. "It's all I need to satisfy my taste for public life."

It is likely, however, that Huber will also need the patience of Job and the wisdom of Solomon when it comes to whipping the partisan Assembly into line. But he expresses guarded optimism when speaking of his GOP adversaries.

Indulge in Criticism "They're going to indulge in a lot of criticism and I hope that it's constructive," he said. "They have a right to be partisan, but I hope they join us in finding solutions."

The principal concern, Huber said, will surround the budget and Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's tax bill.

"It will overshadow every-

Former Appleton Pastor Chosen as LCUSA Delegate

NEW YORK — The Rev. Chrisuan Thearle, former pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Appleton, has been chosen as one of 43 representatives to the fifth annual meeting of the Lutheran Council in the USA (LCUSA). The convention will be the first week in February.

Thearle now is regional secretary of the Board of American Missions, San Antonio, Tex.

The Council was formally organized as a constituting convention in 1966. It has six major areas of activity and cooperation — theological studies, education, mission, and welfare services, service to military, personnel and public relations.

Participants in the cooperative effort are the Lutheran Church in America, the American Lutheran Church and Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

"It won't be like it was around here last year when they took delight in harpooning their own governor," he said. "I'll defend the right of independence by the legislators of my party, but we'll be keeping an eye on Gov. Lucey's programs. I think he'd want it that way."

people in our church circle think about including us in the social events because of my handicap. They still feel I may give them TB germs. Is this possible as long as I am checked periodically? — S.S.

We've come such a long way in treating TB that there's a tendency to be a bit careless about it sometimes. And yet it remains so prevalent that we can't afford to take any needless chances.

I commend you for doing what every former TB patient ought to do: be checked every six months.

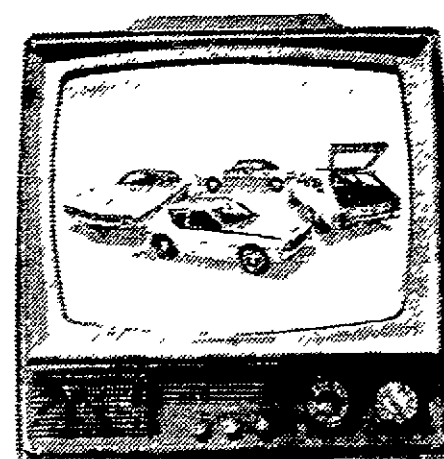

With such regular checks (an X ray that shows no changes and a negative sputum test — showing no TB germs in the sputum) you are no hazard to anyone else, including, of course, the children with whom you baby-sit.

As a matter of fact, you are a safer baby-sitter than the average sicker, because there is always the possibility that somebody else may have an active, yet undetected, case of TB. You, on the contrary, know from your regular tests that you do not have an active case, hence do not have germs that can be given to others.

That is a fact well known to doctors who are trying to cut down the number of new cases. TB is not spread by former TB patients whose regular checks learn more about it, write to show them to be safe. It is Dr. Thosteson in care of the spread by people who have developed the disease but don't yet know it.

(Of course there is no excuse long, self-addressed, stamped for a person who knows he has envelope and 25 cents in coin to TB and still gives it to others — cover cost of printing and the occasional person who walks handling

Public Schooling Across Nation to Cost $42.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Education Association reported today it will cost a record $42.4 billion in 1970-71 to run the nation's public schools but the federal government's share will shrink to its lowest percentage level in six years.

The NEA's 29th annual report of "estimates of school statistics" added that the failure of the federal government to pay a greater share of the cost of educating the nation's 45 million elementary and secondary pupils will fall on financially-pressed state and local governments.

"This downhill trend is alarming," said NEA president Helen Bain in a press release. "The federal government is providing a pittance. . . . We strongly believe it should be supplying about one-third the school funds, with the state and local governments providing similar proportions."

All - Time High

The federal contribution reached an all-time high of 8 percent of the school dollar in 1967-68, but has dropped the last two years, the NEA estimated. Federal money will be only 6.9 percent of the total this school year.

The government's contribution is placed at $2.9 billion—up $126 million over the year before. States will have to put up $17.2 billion and $21.8 billion (52 percent of the total) will come from local governments.

Capital outlays this year are expected to show a further decline but this may in part reflect the leveling off of enrollment, NEA researchers said.

An estimated fall 1970 enrollment of 45,880,950 is less than a 1 per cent increase over the previous year and the smallest gain in a decade.

Per pupil expenditures this year are estimated at an all-time high of $839. However, because of inflation, the increase from $773 is not enough to permit schools to purchase the goods and services they could in 1969-70, the NEA said.

Cut By Inflation

Per pupil expenditures will vary widely. Eleven states will spend $850 per student, while five states will spend less than $600.

Sam M. Lambert, NEA executive secretary, said the average classroom teacher's annual salary is estimated at $9,265.

Mrs. Bain added: "The rise in her pupil expenditure would not offset the higher prices in goods and services. And the rise in salaries for teachers . . . was just about enough to cancel the rise in consumer costs."

Mrs. Bain said she will be watching very closely what President Nixon is willing to do for education.

"The NEA is concerned about what place education really has among this administration's priorities," she said.

Medina Court-Martial Hearing Ends

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — The Army has finished closed hearings that will determine whether Capt. Ernest Medina will be court-martialed on charges that include responsibility for any civilian deaths at My Lai.

The last of the lengthy hearings was held at Ft. McPherson Sunday. Those who appeared were Medina, his lawyers and four former members of Charlie Company, which he commanded.

Ten former Charlie Company soldiers testified Saturday when the hearing began.

Medina commanded the company when it conducted an assault on the village of My Lai March 16, 1968.

Enemy Soldiers

The Army alleges that some Charlie Company soldiers massacred villagers after finding no enemy soldiers.

Medina made no comment to newsmen during hearing recesses but his chief military lawyer, Capt. Mark Kadish, told reporters Sunday there will be no immediate decision on whether Medina will be tried.

The investigating officer in the case, Col. James H. Mobley, said.

He was asked whether Medina would testify at either court-martial now being held for Charlie Company soldiers charged in the alleged massacre.

"The hearings were closed," and I intend to maintain the integrity of the hearings," he Kadish.

Court-martials are under way for Lt. William L. Calley Jr., accused of killing 102 villagers, and Sgt. Charles Hutto, charged with assault with intent to murder at least six. Another soldier, S. Sgt. David Mitchell, has been acquitted.

'M-A-S-H' Is Favorite of Film Critics

NEW YORK (AP) — "M-A-S-H" the Korean war satire has been voted best movie of 1970 in the fifth annual poll of The National Society of Film Critics. It is the first American-made picture to win the distinction.

Sweden's Ingmar Bergman was chosen the year's best director for his work on "The Passion of Anna," runner-up in the best movie balloting. Bergman won the same honor for "Persona" in 1967 and "Shame" in 1968.

The society, whose members are film critics representing 14 magazines and two newspapers, announced the awards Sunday.

George C. Scott was selected the year's outstanding actor for his portrayal of the title role in "Patton."

Women in Love

Glenda Jackson was named best actress for her characterization of the liberated sister in the dramatization of D. H. Lawrence's novel "Women in Love."

The critics also cited Chief Dan George, an Indian who played an aged Indian in "Little Big Man," and Lois Smith, the hero's sister in "Five Easy Pieces," as the year's outstanding supporting performers.

The society consists of 22 film critics from Saturday Review, The Washington Post, Esquire, The Nation, Time, Life, The Atlantic, The New Yorker, Commonweal, The New Republic, Harper's, Newsweek, The Village Voice, Vogue, The New Leader and Playboy.

In previous years, the society honored the French-made "Z," the Swedish "Shame" and "Persona," and "Blow-Up," produced in England by an Italian.

Jewish Militants To Harass Soviets

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the militant Jewish Defense League says his group will step up its anti-Soviet campaign by forming teams to "trail and harass" Soviet diplomats working here.

"We don't want to build cultural bridges on the bodies of three million Jews," said Rabbi Meir Kahane when asked if his organization's activities might not aggravate Soviet-American relations.

Speaking outside the Soviet mission to the United Nations on East 67th Street, Kahane said Sunday that "the life of each Russian will be made miserable" under the harassment campaign.

The league has spearheaded a number of anti-Soviet demonstrations in recent weeks to protest the condition of Jews living in the Soviet Union and the conviction of 12 persons, most of them Jews, for an attempted hijacking.

Cars Vandalized

In response the Soviet Union has officially protested the campaign. In Moscow over the weekend the cars of three American correspondents were vandalized in apparent retaliation.

Kahane, who founded the JDL in 1963, said he called for harassment of Soviet diplomats after hearing reports of the Moscow incidents.

A few league members followed cars emerging from the mission here Sunday. Police escorted the cars and blocked off the street.

Diplomats Followed

He said the diplomats and staff personnel had been followed to their homes and had been called names.

In Moscow, Pravda published a long article Sunday saying that "Zionist storm troopers" were conducting a "campaign of terror and provocation" against Soviet citizens in the United States. But it said the majority of Americans demanded such acts.

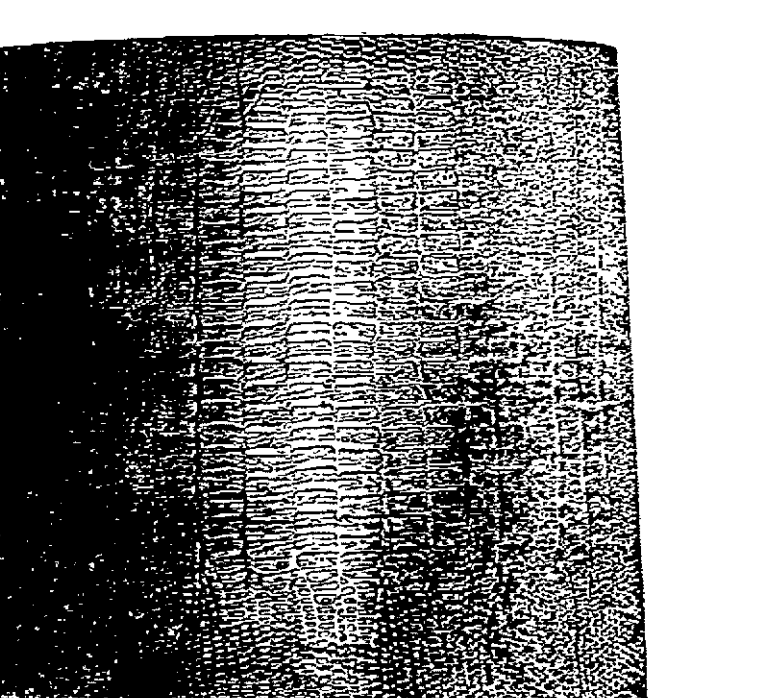

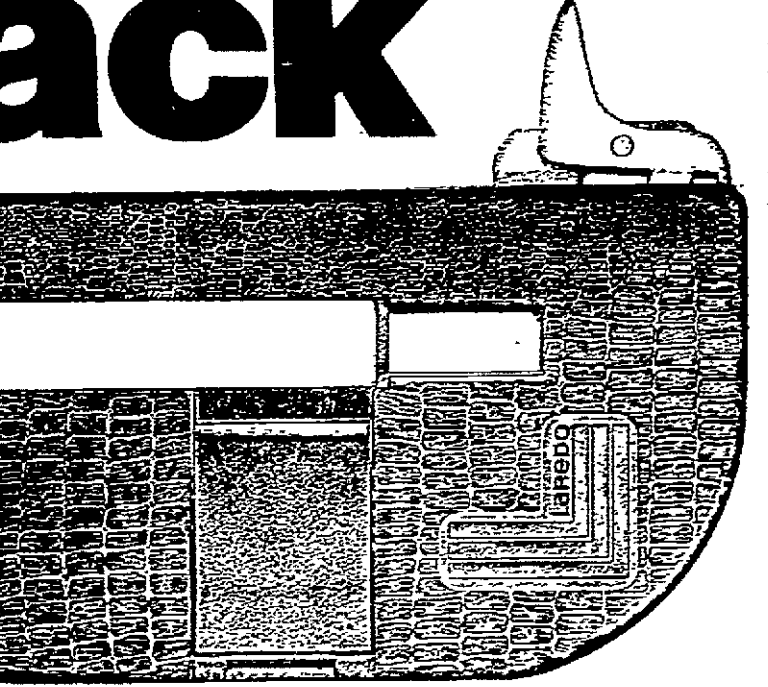

The newspaper also described in detail the bombing of the Soviet cultural office in Washington last Friday.

An anonymous woman called news agencies after that blast and said: "This is a sample of things to come. Let our people go. Never again!"

The Pravda story said the woman was a JDL member and quoted only the first sentence of her statement.
